The Debt Question.
Poor Old Pound.
Amy Johnson Hops.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WASHINGTON IS looking around for something else to tax, because the "beer tax will not provide enough money." It will not indeed, if grudging alteration of the prohibition law cuts down its sale. You can tax only what is sold.

New York talks of making over the big Hippodrome into an imitation German "beer garden." A good imitation would not earn enough to pay half the taxes or a quarter. In German beer gardens people sip beer. They must POUR IT DOWN if Uncle Sam is to get five hundred millions in taxes.

IN THE old days, that make us shudder, men stood elbow to elbow and sometimes three and four deep in front of Andy Horn's bar at the Brooklyn Bridge entrance.

The bar was swimming in beer, a dozen bartenders were swimming in perspiration. Heavy beer glasses with the handles on the sides were ten times as thick as autumnal leaves in Vallombrosa, or anywhere else.

ONE WASHINGTON dispatch suggests that this government will give Europe another "debt holiday of three months." It is for Gov. Roosevelt to decide after that.

Another Washington correspondent believes this administration will say to Europe:

"Pay your December installment, and we shall talk over the debt afterward."

The next installment will come after March 4, and then the "buck" would be passed to Gov. Roosevelt.

It would seem good Republican policy to collect now and lift that much from the last Republican spending. Republicans know that other elections are coming.

BRITAIN'S POUND sterling, in another fainting fit yesterday, fell to $3.27¼ at noon. London, wagging a heavy head, says if we insist on the $95,000,000 payment in December, the pound will drop to $3, and all other non-gold exchange will fall with it.

Too bad, but, wagging our heads, we remark that the United States can stand a drop in the pound sterling better than it can stand the loss of eleven billion dollars. Also, our noble dollar while the war was on, was worth only fifty cents in Spain, and far below par in China. Nevertheless it came back.

Great Britain's pound will do the same, and if the pound should fall to three or two dollars, Great Britain theoretically could save all she owes us by paying back her own sterling obligations very cheaply.

THERE IS no ill feeling toward any foreign country in this. The whole question is, who should pay the eleven billion dollars? The people that borrowed it from us, "their backs to the wall" in war, or the taxpayers of the United States?

What do you think the nations of Europe would say and do if conditions were reversed?

AMY JOHNSON ended her hop from London to Cape Town, South Africa, establishing a new record on the 6,250-mile trip and beating her husband's record by ten hours. Praise her, mentally and orally.

For your private information her real name is Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison. But Miss Ruth Hale, whose real name in the eye of the law is Mrs. Heywood Broun, writes that she doesn't want Mrs. Mollison called "Mrs." or "Mollison."

Any command from a lady is obeyed, but this old-fashioned column believes it is a good thing for women to take their husband's names. Then in case they have a good son, they get the credit of it. If Abraham Lincoln's mother were alive she would not want to be called "Miss Nancy Hanks." She would say:

"Please call me Mrs. Lincoln. I want my name signed forever to that fine boy of mine"

COMMISSIONER Ten Eyck, head of New York state's waterways Association, says the United States should demand from Canada all Canadian territory south of the St. Lawrence River before putting through the waterways agreement. That, it is to be presumed, was not suggested seriously.

Yesterday St. John's Chamber of Commerce in New Brunswick unanimously resolved that Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine should each give a strip of territory to Canada, in connection with the St. Lawrence project.

NEITHER WILL give the other any territory. The United States, because it is a matter of common sense, and because it has plenty of idle men and machinery, might well dig its own waterway canal from the lakes to the ocean on American soil.

Only a goose would talk about the United States annexing all or any part of Canada. But if Canada would annex the United States, and continue the majority rule, that would be good for both countries.

IN THE depression the birth and death rates are falling and the average age of Americans, steadily increasing, is now between 27 and 30.

The learned Dr. Nystrom, of Columbia College, says we shall average fifty years of age in America some day, and be very conservative.

The "very conservative" doesn't follow. Every father and mother can testify that one single modern young person is enough to offset the conservatism of a dozen uncles, aunts and grandmothers.

THIEF BEATS HILL TOP WIDOW

Leaves Her Trussed, Gagged After Taking $2 From Till

Mrs. Adda Massey, 56, a widow, of 314 Boggs avenue, was beaten, bound, gagged and locked in a closet today by a robber who posed as a civil engineer seeking a room to rent, she reported to police. He fled with $2.

Shortly after Mrs. Massey opened her confectionary shop, she said, a man who had inquired about a room last night returned. She took him to the second floor to show him a room.

He complained of smelling gas and as she stooped to investigate, he felled her with his fists. She screamed. The robber snarled:

"Don't cry out again or I'll beat you some more."

She pleaded:

"Take anything you want. But don't hurt me."

The intruder took a necktie from his pocket and gagged her, then took off his own tie and bound her hands. He placed her in a closet, went downstairs and rifled the cash register of $2.

Returning to the second floor, the robber released Mrs. Massey from the closet and demanded:

"Where's your money?"

She said:

"I have none."

He struck her again, then left. After working with her hands for an hour she loosed herself and telephoned detectives.

Col. Robins Taken to Hospital

BULLETIN.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Col. Raymond Robins, prohibitionist and peace advocate, found in the North Carolina mountains yesterday after a disappearance of more than two months, was brought to Asheville today and placed in a sanitarium under the care of a physician.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—"The President is glad that Col. Robins has been found safe and alive."

This statement by one of President Hoover's secretaries today constituted the only White House observation on the discovery of Col. Raymond Robins, dry crusader, in the mountains of North Carolina where he has been living for several months under the name of "Raymond Rogers."

No further information was forthcoming from the White House. When and how Mr. Hoover was advised of his friend's safety was not disclosed.

One official said that all the knowledge that has come to the White House had been gleaned from newspaper reports.

Prohibition officials who have been supervising the search for the missing crusader were reticent and non-committal.

GOES TO SANITORIUM

WHITTIER, N. C., Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Phalanxed by deputy prohibition agents who had maintained a constant guard since his identification, Col. Raymond Robins, long missing prohibitionist, was taken from the boarding house of Bob McHan here this morning to Asheville.

It was understood Robins would enter the Appalachian Sanitorium, a hospital for the treatment of mental diseases, near Asheville.

Three deputies were in the au-

CHALLENGES RIGHT TO SEAT

Governor Expected to Issue Certificate, Cite Objections

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, intimated here today he would issue a certificate of election to Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, but might accompany it with a separate letter of his own to the Senate, challenging Davis' right to a seat.

The Pennsylvania Governor, during the recent campaign, urged the Republican state committee to replace Senator Davis as Republican nominee. Davis is under federal indictment charging violation of the lottery laws.

While Pinchot has reached no decision in the Davis case, he indicated he was inclined to feel that the majority gained by the Senator in the recent election entitles him to the certificate of election. However, he made it clear there has been no change in his attitude toward Davis and intimated he was weighing the advisability of sending a separate letter to the Senate challenging Davis' right to his seat.

In 1927 Gov. Pinchot sent a letter in the case of William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, whose election to the Senate was under fire. In that case Pinchot said Vare "appeared to be" elected in the certificate sent to the Senate for the latter. Vare later was denied a seat by the Senate on a charge of excessive campaign expenditures in the primary.

ORDERS PAPERS OF ELLENBOGEN

The petition of Congressman Harry A. Estep, seeking a certified copy of the naturalization record of Henry Ellenbogen, who defeated Estep in the election for Congress in the Thirty-third District, was granted today by Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court.

Estep said in his petition he desired the copy in the interest of the public, for future court proceedings, and in judicial proceedings before the Allegheny Common Pleas Court sitting as return board judges. Judge McVicar specified that the copy is for use only in the judicial proceedings named in the petition.

Etna Man Killed By Shifting Engine

John Neff, 45, of Etna, was killed when he was struck by a shifting engine of the Pennsylvania Railroad near Seventh street, Sharpsburg, last night, according to a Coroner's report.

BANDIT SHOOTS BANK CLERK

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A bandit escaped with $14,000 this morning after wounding a messenger who was carrying the money to the West Side branch of the Old National Bank.

The bandit grabbed two of three sacks of money which the messenger, Walter Bishoff, was carrying. The third sack containing $2,000 was left lying on the sidewalk as the bandit fled in a car which he had parked nearby.

Bishoff was carrying the money from the Franklin Bank and Trust Company, two doors away from the bank by which he was employed. Witnesses said Bishoff refused to give up the money upon demand and the robber fired a shot from a sawed-off shotgun into his arm. A second shot hit the messenger in the other arm.

The license number of the car in which the robber escaped was obtained.

Threats Bar To Student Hilarity

Threats of expulsion in event of arrest had a deterring effect upon Carnegie Tech's usually boisterous celebration on the eve of the Pitt-Tech football game at the Stadium, Oakland police said today. As a consequence the "thuse" consisted in the main of a bonfire, pep meeting and cheers for the team in the Tech bowl, off Forbes street, near Woodlawn road.

The threat was passed out by Carnegie Tech officials, police said, as the aftermath of the pre-game celebration last year, which resulted in the arrest of 85 students and the flooding of the cellroom of the Oakland Police Station when arrested students tore out the plumbing.

The students, removed to Central Police Station, were discharged the next day after a reprimand. The year previous they built a bonfire in Woodlawn road and when police arrived hurled a barrage of pop bottles at them.

SENATOR JONES DIES IN WEST

SEATTLE, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—United States Senator Wesley L. Jones, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, died here early today.

The Senator, who was defeated for re-election November 8 by Homer T. Bone, Tacoma Democrat, was 69 years old. He was the author of the famous "five and ten" dry law penalty act.

The end came peacefully at 2 a. m., as the Senator was surrounded by members of his family who had been at his bedside since early last night.

Senator Jones went to a sanitarium for a rest November 9, exhausted by his strenuous fight for re-election, expecting to leave for Washington after a two weeks' rest. But the trials of the campaign and a series of operations undergone three years ago had apparently undermined his health.

Even before the campaign he had not been in robust health, being troubled by a heart affection.

Trotzky at Naples, Hides in Ship Cabin

NAPLES, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Leon Trotzky, exiled Soviet leader en route to Copenhagen for a lecturing engagement, hid himself in his cabin aboard the Italian liner Praga today when the ship arrived here. Later he was persuaded to go on a short motor trip to Sorrento and Pompeii.

Reports persisted he might participate in an effort to overthrow Joseph Stalin, present Soviet dictator.

Wales Goes Home, Says He Likes Irish

BELFAST, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—"Everyone who knows Irishmen likes them," the Prince of Wales said in a farewell speech to Ireland last night just before he boarded a special train to catch a channel boat back to England.

The Prince said he liked Irishmen, "for we have many tastes in common. They like a joke and are always ready for a bit of fun."

COLD SWEEPING ON CITY

Pittsburgh will shiver in the grip of a cold wave tonight and tomorrow if Weather Prognosticator W. S. Brotzman can be believed, but the younger set need be in no hurry to sharpen sled runners, for any snow visiting the city will be in flurries and won't cover the ground, he predicts.

Lowest temperature should be about 20 degrees above zero.

Advance of the cold was traced by Brotzman from the northwestern plain states where sub-zero and near-zero temperatures were reported. It had already reached the Northwestern corner of Pennsylvania early today.

Two Brothers Die Within Five Days

David C. Rennia, 65, of 312 West street, Homestead, tomorrow will attend the second funeral of a brother within five days.

John Rennia, 74, of Venetia, Washington County, fell dead Monday while entering the home of his brother William, 79, of West Elizabeth, who was critically ill. William died yesterday. His funeral will be held tomorrow.

HITLER MEETS HINDENBURG

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler, making what may be his most powerful bid for leadership in the German government, talked for an hour today with President von Hindenburg, emerged with a broad smile and let it be known that he would see the President again next Tuesday.

Persons close to the President said the meeting was "extraordinarily cordial," and there was a prevailing feeling in political circles that the day's conference and those which are to follow may produce a "national concentration" cabinet in which Hitler's National Socialists will have an important part.

Last August when the President received Hitler for the first time the Nazi leader made a blunt demand for the chancellorship or nothing. He was turned down and the interview lasted only 15 minutes.

After he left the palace today Hitler went into conference with his closest personal advisers. Gregor Strasser was there, Herman Goering, Capt. Ernst Roehm and Dr. Otto Wagener, his economic adviser.

Helen Hayes Declared 'Best Film Actress'

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—In recognition of meritorious achievements in various branches of the industry, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences today had bestowed its traditional gold statuettes upon an illustrious few at its annual banquet.

Frederic March and Wallace Beery last night were declared equal sharers of the award for the best performance by an actor during the year. March polled but one more vote than Beery, and by a rule of the academy, never before called into use, it is stipulated that any member who receives within two votes of the winner also shares equally in the award. March's award was for his performance in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and Beery's for "The Champ."

The other winners were:

Helen Hayes, for best performan ceof an actress, in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet."

Frances Marion, who won the Academy's writing award for 1929-30 with her screen story, "The Big House," won again this year with her original story, "The Champ."

Edwin Burke, for best picture adaptation, "Bad Girl."

Frank Borzage, for his direction of "Bad Girl."

Lee Garmes, for photographic work on "Shanghai Express."

Gordon Wiles, for art direction on "Trans-Atlantic."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for the best produced picture, "Grand Hotel."

Vets Evacuate Fayette Camp, Take Old Hotel

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 19.—Homeless war veterans ordered to move from Camp Sherry, 10 miles east of here, were on the march again today to take up winter quarters in the abandoned Commercial Hotel in Scottdale's business district.

Dr. C. H. Sherry, owner of the land on which the two score men and a handful of women and children were encamped, ordered the evacuation because, he said, they lacked leadership and he feared he would be held responsible for their welfare and conduct. The hotel quarters, consisting of 15 or 20 rooms, were provided by the owner, William Semans, of Scottdale.

Burgess Charles Lewis and Police Chief Frank Ganoe, of Scottdale, said the veterans would not be molested if they are orderly. They had been at Camp Sherry since August, having been members of the Bonus Expeditionary Force disbanded at Johnstown, Pa., after being ousted from Washington.

VOTE RECOUNT LOOMS FOR TENTH LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

RETURN BOARD RULING READY MONDAY

436 Vote Gain for Erk Cuts Lead Of Brooks

A recount of the 149 ballot boxes in the Tenth Legislative District loomed today as Returning Board Judges W. H. McNaugher and James P. Egan prepared to hand down a decision Monday affecting the accumulation of votes for various candidates, running on more than one ticket.

The judges on Thursday ruled to prevent a lumping for candidates running on more than one ticket, that one vote should be computed on a non-partisan basis. Since then James L. Quinn, Democratic candidate, has raised the question of giving the candidates the total of their various party votes.

Today Judge McNaugher said the only fair way to arrive at a result was to count all the votes in the legislative district as each election board had apparently made its own rule in arriving at a final vote for the district.

CONFUSION OF NAMES

Frank J. Riddle, Republican-Liberal, also had the nomination of the Prohibition party under the name of Frank Riddle. James H. McClure, Republican, had the Prohibition nomination under the name of James McClure. William L. Callahan was Democratic candidate, and William M. Callahan, the Liberal party nominee.

Councilman M. J. Muldowney, Republican candidate in the Thirty-second Congressional District, lost four votes, while Anne E. Felix, his Democratic opponent, gained two votes, in the recount of the Third District, Ninth Ward.

In the same recount, as affecting legislative candidates, Maloney, Republican, lost two; Metzler, Republican, gained one; Friel, Democrat, gained one, and Brennan, Democrat, gained two.

The board began a re-check late yesterday of the first of 14 ballot boxes in the Twelfth Legislative District, ordered recounted on petition of B. R. Averbach, appearing for the Republican organization. The box was from the First District, Kennedy Township.

ERK TOTAL GROWS

The unofficial lead of Democratic Congressman-elect Twing Brooks of 710 over Republican Congressman Edmund F. Erk was reduced to 274 in the returning board's tabulation of 73 of the 185 districts in the Thirteenth Congressional District. The return board's totals in these districts were: Brooks, 15,205; Erk, 14,271. In the official tabulation Erk has picked up 436 votes.

Edward M. Hough, Republican, and John J. O'Keefe, Democrat, are indicated winners in the Eighth Legislative District, based on returning board figures, with two districts held out by the board. The totals are: Hough, 8,323; W. F. Stadtlander, 7,954; O'Keefe, 8,301, and Walter R. Seymour 8,159. The missing districts are the Seventh of the Twenty-sixth Ward and the Twelfth of the Twenty-seventh Ward, where unofficial figures gave Hough 717 and O'Keefe 456.

Both Republican candidates were defeated in the Seventh Legislative District when John L. Powers and Clair E. McGinnis, Democratic candidates, received 6,891 and 6,832 votes respectively. James P. Rooney and James Weitach were the defeated candidates with 5,894 and 5,542 votes respectively. These are returning board figures with the Fourth District of the Twenty-third Ward and the Ninth District of the Twenty-fifth Ward held out for recount.

Bond Frees Officer In Vote Row Case

Patrolman Manuel Morrie, of the Forty-third Street Police Station, held for court last night by Alderman Edward W. Haas, of 1811 West Liberty avenue, on charges of assault and battery and violation of the election laws, was at liberty on a $1,500 bond today.

Rachel Fehl, of 322 Taylor street, an overseer in the polling place of the First District, Eighth Ward, who filed the charges, testified that Morrie demanded to see her overseer's certificate, pushed her and entered the polling place after it had been closed to voters.

Quick Alarm Checks Eighth Street Fire

A patrolman passing the L. H. Smith Woodenware Company at 12 Eighth street, early today saw flames shooting up the elevator shaft of the seven-story building. He summoned two downtown engine companies who extinguished the blaze. The damage was estimated at $100.

A Big Help in Speeding Up -:- By QUIN HALE

ROBINS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

tomobile with Robins. Seven had been on guard, under order of Deputy Prohibition Administrator J. E. Kanipe, of Asheville, to permit no one to speak with Robins.

Tall and rugged, his face tanned by the Carolina sun, the elderly prohibitionist and social reformer walked with firm tread from the boarding house between the deputies and stepped into the waiting automobile.

He was heavily bearded and was dressed in worn blue overalls.

BOY GAVE CLUE

Carl Fisher, 13-year-old Sunday school student who accompanied Col. Raymond Robins on Sunday school picnics in the mountains, was credited with providing the information that led to identification of the missing prohibitionist.

Fisher, a slim, freckled youth, who attends the seventh grade of the mountain school here, said he noticed the resemblance the prospector, known as "Raymond Rogers," bore to newspaper photographs of Col. Robins, and wrote "the prohibition people in New York about it."

This was believed to have been the "mysterious letter" referred to today in New York by Salmon Levinson, Chicago attorney, as furnishing the clue that led to the finding of Robins.

WIFE SPEEDS TO SIDE

Robins' wife was speeding northward today to Asheville from Brooksville, Fla.

Accompanied by her companion-secretary, Miss Lisa von Browsky, Mrs. Robins hurriedly left her home near this village last night after receiving word from Washington that her husband was believed located. She said:

"I'm hopeful it's true—oh, it must be true!

"I mustn't believe it until I see him, though. I couldn't bear the disappointment."

REUNION AWAITED

Perhaps when he sees his wife and hears her voice, Col. Robins may regain his memory and admit that he is the man who vanished on September 3 while on his way to keep an appointment with his friend, President Hoover. Thus far, he has exhibited absolute ignorance of his identity and has failed to recognize his nephew, John Dreier, Jr., of Brooklyn, who identified him.

As "Raymond Rogers," he took an active part in the political campaign in the community, townsfolk said. He delivered speeches in support of President Hoover, the Republican party and prohibition.

Sheriff S. R. Patterson said:

"He was a right good spieler, too."

EXPECT PARLEY ON NEW BANK

Negotiations were expected to start over the weekend, between depositors' committees from the Monongahela National Bank and the recently closed Diamond National Bank, with an eye to forming a new bank from the best assets of the closed institutions.

Three men—H. C. Graham, a director, John F. Miller and James Henry—were named to represent depositors in the Diamond, following a meeting of 150 depositors of that institution, yesterday afternoon.

They will seek to prepare a plan which may entitle depositors to immediate access to 60 per cent of their deposits, from part of which they may be asked to purchase stock in the new bank. The balance of 40 per cent, it is anticipated, may be made available as the slow assets of the bank are freed.

Quick action is expected in event a consolidation can be perfected and a new bank formed. A dividend at the Monongahela has been held up for some months pending definite success or failure of some such plan.

EATON DELAYED IN PROBE

HARRISBURG, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—At the close of another series of Senate committee hearings, Oliver K. Eaton, chief counsel, announced his determination to "get to the bottom of the utility holding company problem."

Adjourning last night until November 30, the committee had delved deeply into the policies of two major systems, the Associated Gas and Electric Company and the Insull System.

Besides the Senate inquiry, Eaton sought to have another investigation of holding companies begun by the Public Service Commission. The committee withheld action on this request.

Eaton's request for an immediate subpena of Commissioner S. Ray Shelby's bank accounts also was held for full committee action. The bank and brokerage records of Shelby and all present and former commissioners are returnable on November 30.

Roomers Don't Pay, Landlord Hangs Self

Non-paying roomers and poor business conditions forced Toefel Woodka, 40, proprietor of the Watson House at 86 Washington street, to hang himself early today, according to a police report to the county morgue.

Woodka, despondent over business conditions, told Sophia Lewis, his housekeeper, he was going to end his life, she told police. He was found hanging by a necktie to the foot of his bed by Joe Kronesky, a roomer.

SEATING OF NINE CONGRESSMEN TO BE FOUGHT

Democrats Charge Frauds in and Near Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Contests for the seat of every Republican Congressman elected last week in Philadelphia and in the three districts surrounding Philadelphia will be filed, the House committee investigating the election in Pennsylvania has been informed.

S. Davis Wilson, chairman of the Roosevelt independent state committee, made the announcement as the committee adjourned yesterday to meet today in Wilmington, Del.

Statements that former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy "bought" the election in Bucks County for Representative Henry W. Watson were made by George MacReynolds, of Doylestown, chairman of the Democratic committee of Bucks County. Watson (Rep.) defeated N. L. Lichtenwalner (Dem.) in the Bucks-Lehigh County district.

ASSAIL GIRLS' VOTES

Wilson's announcement was made after witnesses, testifying previously before the committee, said among other things that fake Ku Klux Klan cards were used by a Philadelphia Republican ward leader to swing votes away from Gov. Roosevelt; that 60 non-resident girl students at Beaver College in Montgomery County were voted illegally in that county, and that 100,000 voters in Philadelphia had been given illegal assistance.

The representatives elected in Philadelphia who face a possible contest are H. C. Ransley, James M. Beck, A. M. Waldron, George W. Edmonds, J. J. Connolly, E. L. Stokes and G. P. Darrow.

MAY REOPEN QUIZ

In Delaware County, James Wolfenden was re-elected to Congress, and in Montgomery the successful candidate was J. William Ditter. They also face possible contests.

Chairman Heartsill Ragon (Dem.), Arkansas, allowed complaints to be filed against the representatives, and announced that the complainants could submit additional specifications of alleged irregularities in writing.

The committee will consider them, Chairman Ragon said, and decide on the advisability of returning here to reopen the investigation.

3-Day Ocean Mail Service Proposed

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Plans for a three-day passenger and mail route between Canada and Europe have reached an advanced stage, it was reported today. Should the project now under consideration by the governments of Ireland, Canada and England be successfully worked out, Halifax, N. S., will be the terminal point for America and Galway, Ireland, for Europe.

The scheme will require a line of fast steamers between Halifax and Galway and at each of these points airplane service will be arranged.

Drug Store Holdup Nets Gunman $125

Two armed bandits who obtained $125 in the holdup last night of the Mayflower drug store at 418 Federal street, were being sought by police today. The thugs, both armed, forced James Spaniel, of 1512 Pitt street, Wilkinsburg, the manager, to open a safe from which they took the cash.

Jack Kripper, of 869 East Ohio street, and Irving Holland, of 1830 Ley street, clerks, were held at bay while Spaniel was opening the safe.

'Year's 'Best Actress'

MISS HELEN HAYES . . . . TWO BIG THRILLS IN HER LIFE

Miss Hayes, stage and film actress and "Act-of-God-Mother," awarded the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences acclamation for the year's "best performance of an actress"—in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet." Miss Hayes: "I don't know what to say. When I had my other 'biggest' thrill, all I could say was, 'My, isn't she red!' "

MILLER DENIES SUIT CHARGES

J. Clyde Miller, member of the Allegheny County Poor Board, has filed a separate answer to the taxpayer's suit brought by Walter H. Riehl, seeking an accounting. Miller denied most of Riehl's allegations, declaring that in the purchase of the Carnegie Coal Company farm the board did not know that Louis P. Schneider paid only $11,500 for the property for which the county paid $15,000.

Miller admitted H. H. Dixon, another member, placed some of the insurance for the board, but asserted it was placed legally. He denied the board did anything illegally and asserted some of the criticized actions dated back six years and asserted action regarding them was therefore outlawed.

Pittsburghers Bid Low on Construction

The McCrady Construction Company submitted the low bid for the construction of four miles of concrete on Route 679, in Harmar and Indiana townships, the State Highway Department announced. Its bid was $169,385.

The Ortale Construction Company of Pittsburgh was low with a bid of $36,705 for a steel truss bridge in Forest County. The Rust Engineering Company with a bid of $57,392 was low for construction of a five-span bridge in Cokeburg, Washington County.

GREEN URGES 5-DAY WEEK

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Reiterating the belief that the five-day working week and six-hour day are America's only hope for eliminating unemployment, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, prepared here today for the opening Monday of the Federation's general convention.

Addressing sessions of three departments of the A. F. of L. yesterday, the labor leader said the nation must either divide the available work by reducing working hours or support a permanent army of millions of unemployed.

The nation cannot go back to the 48-hour week, he said, "for there is not enough work for that."

Didier Dismissed From P. S. C. Position

HARRISBURG, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Nine dismissals announced by the Governor's office included that of Paul Didier, Jr., of Pittsburgh, assistant railroad engineer for the Public Service Commission at a salary of $4,080. Didier's father formerly was the Belgian consul at Pittsburgh and chief engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Co. A, 319th Inf., To Rally Tonight

Maj. Frank E. Bonney, adjutant of the 99th Division, U. S. A., stationed in Pittsburgh, is to be the chief speaker at the annual dinner of Company A, the 319th Infantry, A. E. F., in the Roosevelt Hotel tonight.

The dinner will be attended by about 80 former members of the company, headed by Capt. Charles Muse. The company has held a dinner annually every year since the armistice.

5 of 6 South Side Fire Alarms False

South Side fire departments answered six fire alarms last night and early today and in five drew blanks.

In the sixth they discovered a roof blaze at the home of Mrs. Mary Tracey, at 147 South Twenty-first street which they extinguished with an estimated loss of $200.

PRESENT BEER TAX CITED FOR REVENUE

Unrepealed Levy Seen As Source of Millions

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Congress will be advised by its own experts that the present unrepealed tax on beer would yield $300,000,000 during the first year's operation of a beer law, it was learned today.

If the tax is raised to the figure proposed by the congressional "wet blocs" last year, the estimated yield would be $450,000,000.

Although no formal figures are ready for submission, the regular congressional experts have given these estimates to members of Congress based upon a survey of the past revenue yield of beer.

When Congress outlawed beer it left on the statute books the wartime tax rate of two cents a pint. The tax urged by wets last year was three cents a pint.

LARGER MARKET

Because of the growth of the country, it is estimated by the experts that a larger market for beer would be afforded than existed near the beginning of national prohibition.

Before the wet reign ended there were 15 wet states with a population of 55,000,000. As a result of referendums in the recent election and previous action, beer could be sold in states having approximately 60,000,000 people.

Reports reaching Washington indicate that two or three more states will legalize beer during the coming winter, thus expanding the potential market.

Experts who have studied the situation point out that Great Britain raised $346,000,000 taxes on beer in 1931 with less than half the population of this country.

HIGH TAXATION

As a part of the program of that country to discourage drinking, taxes have been raised on beer until the rate now is approximately 12 cents a pint. As the tax has soared, consumption has lessened.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, whose remarks on his return to Washington were accepted by wets as a declaration that he would lead a filibuster against liquor bills, emphatically denied any such intention. He said:

"I never said I was going to filibuster against prohibition bills. I will discuss the matter and present my views. I don't believe the country wants to return to conditions that prevailed before national prohibition."

LEAGUE REPLIES TO LEGION

The Western Pennsylvania Branch of the National Economy League, launched here this week at meetings addressed by Admiral Richard Byrd, today issued a statement saying:

"We accept the suggestion of co-operation made by the American Legion to help the League cut government costs and believe it could culminate in the interest of the people as a whole.

"However, no Legion committee has visited League headquarters, or has asked for an appointment or has interviewed any of its officers."

The statement was made by the League's local executive committee, of which A. Rex Flinn is chairman. It was in reply to a statement issued Friday by a Legion committee, headed by Ronald Thompson, and appointed to investigate the League. This committee charged the League with being anti-veteran, despite repeated League denials, but said the veterans were ready to help in "an honest effort to reduce government costs."

The League today reiterated its concern for veterans disabled in service or their dependents, but asserted that "the United States is spending $452,000,000 annually for the benefit of men who left the service as well as when they entered it."

Mt. Pleasant Plant Prepares for Beer

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 19.—Encouraged by indications of the legalization of beer, the Mt. Pleasant Beverage Company is repairing its plant. It has been engaged in manufacturing near-beer and ice.

FIREMEN FIGHTING SMOKE THAT KNOCKED OUT FIVE

DOWNTOWN FIREMEN FIGHTING A STUBBORN FIRE AT 642 SMITHFIELD STREET . . . FIVE OF THEM OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Attorney on Both Sides Of Case Wins, Loses

Assistant District Attorney M. Barney Cohen won and lost a case in Criminal Court late yesterday, acting, on the court's order, for both the prosecutor and defendant. He examined witnesses, and then cross-examined them. The only thing he didn't do was to file objections to his own questions.

It was a backyard assault and battery case from Homestead. Mrs. Anna Mallash, 40, was charged by Mrs. Anna Dudack, 42, her next door neighbor, with having hit her with a tin can. Mrs. Dudack had objected to her neighbor dumping rubbish on the Dudack side of the line fence.

Cohen was prosecuting, but the defendant had no attorney. As there were no other lawyers at hand, Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, told Cohen to represent both sides. He did, even crossing the counsel table to indicate which side he was on at the moment. The jury's verdict of not guilty was given quickly after both women had told their stories.

Theater Crowds Flock To Fire, 5 Overcome

Downtown theater crowds jammed Smithfield street, near Seventh avenue, shortly before midnight as firemen fought a stubborn fire in the basement of a four-story building at 642 Smithfield street, causing loss estimated at $2,500.

Five firemen were overcome by smoke which rolled from the building in dense clouds.

The building adjoins the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

The fire was discovered in the basement of the Premier Italian Restaurant, where alterations were being made preparatory to a formal opening on Monday. Paint and a gas line leak caused by the intense heat added fuel to the flames, which resisted efforts of firemen, who wore gas masks, for more than an hour.

A portion of the ground floor collapsed and several firemen narrowly escaped being hurled into the basement.

The stricken firemen, all in Mercy Hospital, are: Capt. John Jackson and Hoseman James Boyd, of No. 1 Engine Company, and Hosemen Michael Burke, John Leary and Elmer Stinson, of No. 3 Company.

WOMAN SLAIN, MISSING BOY FEARED KIDNAPED BY KILLER

DISCOVER BODY IN CISTERN OF HOME

Fugitive Maniac Linked In Second Crime Near Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—In a cistern at the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Arnold, in suburban Riverside, the body of Mrs. Ellen Saxe was found early today. She apparently had been shot behind the ear or struck there with a blunt instrument. Mrs. Saxe was Mrs. Arnold's mother.

Arnold's 16-year-old son, Bert, by a former marriage, was missing. So was a small automobile kept in a garage at the rear of the place. The youth's parents said he did not know how to drive a car, and his father advanced the theory that the boy was kidnaped by the slayer of Mrs. Saxe.

The body was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Arnold when they returned home from a Chicago theater. Police at first theorized that Mrs. Saxe might have been slain by the youthful killer-kidnaper who recently slew Frank Jordan and kidnaped Miss Lillian Henry, niece of former Police Commissioner John Alcock, but later were inclined to doubt this theory.

Arnold said:

"My boy and my mother-in-law were always on the best of terms. He had never been wild and we can account for this tragedy only by believing he was overpowered by the person or persons who killed her. I know of no motive for anyone killing her unless it was robbery."

The scene of the slaying is but a short distance from the home of Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the "Secret Six," Chicago crime fighting agency.

GIRL'S PICTURE DEFEATS MAN'S DIVORCE SUIT

Judge Stops Hearing When Wife Charges Mate Had Photo

Judge Thomas M. Marshall established a record for speed in divorce cases when he refused a decree to Martin A. Sees, 422 Pressley avenue, from Mary A. Sees after she testified her husband carried another woman's picture in his pocket.

Mrs. Sees, of 108 High street, Etna, produced a photograph of a girl, said to live in Allison Park, which she said she found in Sees' pocket. It bore the name "Madaline," with a telephone number and the notation that she was to be called in the event of anything happening to Sees.

Judge Marshall called up all Mrs. Sees' witnesses and asked if they had ever heard her call her husband the names he had testified, which they denied. Judge Marshall then told Sees:

"You will pay for the testimony in this case and the decree will be refused."

Mrs. Sees testified her husband had kept company with another girl while she was ill with rheumatism, and that he failed to pay her doctor bills.

Baby Nimrods Prowl 'Wilds' Of Carrick

FREDDIE AMMON, 4½

4 Intrepid Hunters Found at 200-Foot Deep 'Rabbit Hole'

Four very young nimrods were home today, hunting rabbits again forbidden for them after their three-hour jaunt through Carrick yesterday in search of "cottontails."

Freddie Ammon, 4, of 2323 Valera street, Carrick; Rollie Thomas, 5, of 2287 Valera street; Joseph Heisler, Jr., 6, and Richard Heisler, 3, both of 2283 Valera street, started after noon yesterday to hunt. They took toy guns with them. After a hysterical hunt in which the police joined, the four were found peering into a 200-foot shaft of an abandoned mine near Raleigh Square. Formerly boarded up, the pit was open.

The youngsters explained they had been waiting at the mouth of the mine for rabbits to come out, when two of their guns dropped in.

CHALFANT GETS NEW TUITION ULTIMATUM

Borough Spurns Pact And Is Told, 'No Pay, No School'

Cash K. Patterson, president of the Turtle Creek School Board, today issued a "no pay, no school" ultimatum to Chalfant borough residents, following their decision, at a turbulent meeting last night, against signing a high school tuition agreement.

Patterson said:

"Unless definite arrangements are made before Monday to pay back and present tuition of Chalfant studen' attending Union High School, the pupils will be barred again. This time they will stay out, unless the parents individually arrange to pay."

Fifty-four Chalfant students were banned Monday but permitted to attend class tentatively pending settlement of the tuition squabble.

At a Chalfant citizens' meeting last night, called by R. R. Schultz, president of the school board, to sound out sentiment, a ballot resulted in a vote of 73 to 9 against signing an agreement to pay immediately about $1,500 arrears and to pay promptly future tuition. The monthly charge per pupil this year for outsiders attending Union High is $12.50.

KIDNAPED BOY FREED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(Universal.)—Paul Marciante, 10, crippled boy, kidnaped from the side of his aunt when on his way to school, November 7, today had been restored mysteriously to his grieving parents.

The boy, dressed warmly in a heavy mackinaw coat, and apparently in good health, walked into a delicatessen store on the East Side last night. He told the proprietor who he was and said:

"I was brought here in an automobile. I was told to come in here."

BRIDGE UPHELD BY SCHWAB

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—In answer to the charge that contract bridge is a "mania," Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, came forward today with a strong defense of the game.

In his capacity as president of the New York Whist Club, Schwab recommended bridge as a tonic and relaxation. Although a multi-millionaire, he cautioned players to stick to low stakes, saying:

"I know of no greater relaxation for hard working men and women than a quiet rubber or two of contract bridge or a round of golf.

"In common with most whist players, I advocate playing at low stakes. Contract bridge, like chess, is too fine a game to ever permit it being turned into a gambling game."

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that was centered over the Gulf of Mexico yesterday morning is now centered over Virginia, and the low pressure extends northward to another center over Eastern Ontario. The disturbance produced light to moderately heavy rain or snow nearly everywhere east of the Mississippi River during yesterday and last night, and it is raining this morning over the Middle Atlantic states and southward to North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee. It is snowing near Lake Erie. High pressure covers the plains states and is attended by clear skies and low temperatures. Freezing temperatures extend as far south as Vicksburg and over Minnesota and North Dakota temperatures are below zero. Low pressure, centered over Alberta, is producing risingf temperatures over Alberta and Saskatchewan.

River Conditions.

Rainfall was general over the entire district, beginning about 4:30 p. m. yesterday. The average amount over the Allegheny River basin is .72 inch, over the Monongahela .51 and over the Ohio, Pittsburgh to Wheeling, .87. The rivers are rising slowly. Stage at Franklin is 2.9 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.1; Pittsburgh, 12.5; Dam No. 4, 9.0; No. 6, 8.2; No. 10, 9.0, and No. 12, 10.0. The rivers will continue to rise. About 13.5-foot stage indicated on Pittsburgh gauge by 8 a. m. Sunday. There will be a further rise Sunday.

HARPO TO GET SOVIET OFFER

MOSCOW, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Harpo Marx, silent partner in the firm of the Four Marx Brothers, is to be invited to Russia for a stage appearance in Moscow early next spring, it was announced by A. M. Dankman, director of the state organization which controls all music halls and circuses.

Russia never has seen any of the Marx Brothers movies but their reputation in Europe and America is well known here. It is felt that Harpo would be particularly adaptable to Russian audiences because his type of pantomime comedy would eliminate the language difficulty usually experienced by a foreign performer.

Dankman said he would like to hear from any American actors or actresses who might be interested in engagements here. In this connection it is understood that Paul Robeson already has contracted to play Othello and other roles here next year.

Caddy Wins $1,000 For Loss of Eye

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A jury in Chester County Court today had placed a value of $1,000 upon a 16-year-old boy's eye.

The jury awarded J. Darlington Cutillo, Phoenixville, $1,000 and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Cutillo, $100 in their suit against R. C. Kern, Phoenixville businessman.

While playing golf at the Phoenixville Country Club three years ago, a ball driven by Kern struck Cutillo in the left eye, blinding it. He was caddying for Kern.

Man Loses Pants On Election, But Foils Winner

LEON, Ia., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—If he who laughs last laughs best, then Rayton Hull must be chuckling loud. Floyd Powers added:

"Didn't we have a bet you were to give me your trousers on demand, whenever and wherever, if Roosevelt won the election?"

Hull answered:

"You're right, but I'll take the last laugh."

Twenty bystanders looked on amazed as Hull slipped off the trousers in front of the post-office. Then came a chorus of guffaws—at Powers' expense. Hull had another pair on underneath. He explained:

"It's been cold lately."

TWO FAMILIES ESCAPE FIRE

Aroused by a passerby, two families, including several small children, were forced to flee their apartment in night attire when fire, believed caused by an overheated stove, partly destroyed the Coney Island Restaurant at 222 State street, Clairton, early today.

The families of John and Stratos Darkos, including three small children, fled from their apartments above the restaurant when a passerby, whose name police did not learn, discovered the blaze on the first floor. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

WILL CONTEST LINKS RADIO

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Radio broadcasting has been brought to the attention of the Probate Court here in a charge it was the channel of an undue influence in the making of a will.

Mrs. Aimee David Martin filed a contest against the will of her father, George W. Davis, of Covina, who died last month. His will provided a legacy of $1 to her, his only child, with the bulk of the estate bequeathed to the John E. Brown College, Ltd., of Siloam Springs, Ark.

She sets forth that her father's sole diversion was the radio, that his only knowledge of the college was obtained from radio broadcasts, and that Evangelist Brown "took advantage of Davis' condition of body and mind and solicited over the radio," thus bringing undue influence to bear upon Davis in making the will.

The will was dated last April, at which time, says Mrs. Martin, her father was of unsound mind.

Injured Motorist Gets $6,500 Verdict

Harvey C. Strainer, Shaler Township, who suffered rib fractures when a truck of the Consolidated Ice Company struck his automobile, was awarded a verdict of $6,500 by a Common Pleas Court jury. The collision occurred at Foster and Forty-second streets, April 14, 1930.

CHARGE BRIDE SHOT HUSBAND

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A 15-year-old widow, said by physicians to be dying of pneumonia, was charged today with the murder of her husband, Wilford Gippert, garage mechanic, who was shot to death Thursday.

The girl, a bride of three months, called for Gippert while in a delirious condition, and asked to be left alone with him. A shot was heard and the husband was found lying across his wife's bed with a fatal bullet wound in the head.

Although a murder charge was filed, Louis Biediger, justice of the peace, said the case could not be considered one of premeditated murder. No date for hearing was set.

Sheetz Estate Only $815,000, Heir Avers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—The estate of the late Elie Sheetz, candy manufacturer and philanthropist, has shrunk from an original estimation of $2,000,000 to $815,000, Jet D. Sheetz, son and sole heir, told the district of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday.

Asking the court to probate the will, he declared the falling off in real estate values and large gifts to charity caused the reduction in the estate. Sheetz started his candy business in Lancaster, Pa.

Republicans Ready to Pass The Fiery Spuds

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Way back in 1776 this country handed itself a big diploma.

But we don't seem to have graduated yet.

We're still tied up with Europe and our diplomats are making more funny noises than a child's photographer.

Next week Mr. Roosevelt will dine with Mr. Hoover and the Republican administration will pass the burned potatoes.

Those incandescent spuds are the gentlemen's agreements between Washington and Europe. The reason Washington is unloading them on the Democrats is the same reason the barber slapped the redhot towel on the customer's face. It was too hot to hold.

We've been up against government with the shades down. Now, the Democrats are going to get a look at the books and add up the hotels. We advise them to also count the five Great Lakes while they're about it. One might be missing.

CHURCHES TO OBSERVE THANKSGIVING

BICENTENNIAL TO END AT SERVICES

Thanksgiving will be observed in many Pittsburgh churches tomorrow. The George Washington Bicentennial Celebration also will be officially terminated tomorrow with religious services in many churches. Other churches will have services on Thanksgiving Day.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission estimates that more than 75,000 churches will participate in separate Thanksgiving bicentennial exercises as a closing tribute to the first President.

UNION SERVICES

Many churches in the Pittsburgh district will combine congregations and hold community services Thursday. The union Thanksgiving service of Dormont churches will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Dormont Presbyterian Church, Potomac and Espy avenues. Similar services of the Mt. Lebanon churches will be held at the same hour in the Beverly Heights United Presbyterian Church.

Union services in the Greenfield-Squirrel Hill district will be held in the Church of the Brethren, Greenfield avenue, at 10 a. m. Thursday.

Services will be held in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church Thanksgiving Day. St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran congregation will observe the day with a 45-minute service beginning at 9:30 a. m. At 10:30 a. m. the East Liberty and Tabernacle Presbyterian churches, the Shady Avenue Baptist and the Shady Avenue Presbyterian churches will unite for services in the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Baum boulevard and Euclid avenue.

WEST VIEW SERVICES

At the same hour services will be held in the Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, West View; the Second United Presbyterian Church, Hay street; the Christian Church, Wallace avenue; St. Luke's Lutheran Church; Trinity Lutheran Church, Stockton avenue, and the North Presbyterian Church, Galveston avenue.

In the First Presbyterian Church services will be held at 10:45 a. m.

Thanksgiving Day English service at 9 a. m. and a German service at 10 a. m. will be held in the Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran Church. The Arch Street Presbyterian Church also will have services.

The customary Thanksgiving service will be held in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Squirrel Hill, at 11 a. m.

Bible Class at Emory To Mark Anniversary

DR. WM. R. WEDDERSPOON

The Rev. Dr. Wedderspoon, Chicago pastor, one-time Emory pastor speaking at the church's morning services, part of the church's centennial celebration.

22 Years of Service To Be Celebrated On Tuesday

The Emory Brotherhood Bible Class will celebrate its twenty-second anniversary Tuesday with a "Family Nite" in the church auditorium.

Founded in 1910, membership has grown from 17 to 800, with an average attendance of 350. Twelve of the original 17 members are still active. A. K. Rowswell, chairman of the anniversary celebration, was one of the founders.

Addresses will be made by the Rev. M. B. Fuller, pastor; by J. W. Johnson, president of the Bible Class, and Harry B. Jamison, teacher. A concert will be presented by a quartet.

The one-hundredth anniversary of the church, itself, will be continued tomorrow with the Rev. Dr. William R. Wedderspoon, of Chicago, former pastor of Emory, preaching. In the evening a musical program will be given by a mixed and male quartet, with a chorus choir of 100 voices.

BIBLE SESSIONS TO OPEN HERE

Beginning tomorrow and continuing through Friday, with the exception of Thanksgiving Day, the Rev. Dr. Frank Crossley Morgan will conduct Bible conferences and preach in the Second United Presbyterian Church, Stockton avenue and Sandusky street, North Side. At 4 p. m. each afternoon he will conduct a Bible conference and at 8 p. m. he will preach.

Dr. Morgan is a son of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, internationally famous preacher. He was born in London, educated in England, and completed his theological training under the supervision of his father in America.

CHURCHES WILL MARK TAYLOR CENTENARY

The Hudson Taylor centenary will be observed from November 20 to 23 in a series of meetings to be held by participating churches in the China Inland Mission in Pittsburgh, Butler, Pa., and Wilkinsburg.

Dr. Howard Taylor, son of J. Hudson Taylor, founder of the China Inland Mission, and his wife, well-known missionary author and speaker, are scheduled to speak, as are the Rev. Dr. Robert Hall Glover, home director; the Rev. H. Edwin V. Andrews, secretary, and the Rev. James S. Orr, of the Province of Kiangsu, China.

Pittsburgh meetings are planned for tomorrow at 3 p. m., Monday at 6:45 and 8 p. m. The 6:45 p. m. meeting will be in charge of the Christian Laymen's Association of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Unitarian Official to Speak Here

DR. CHARLES R. JOY

Boston Pastor Will Talk on Church Consolidation

The Rev. Dr. Charles R. Joy, of Boston, administrative vice president of the American Unitarian Association, will speak at the First Unitarian Church twice tomorrow. At the evening meeting he will discuss the Free Church of America, an attempted movement to bring into one fellowship Congregationalists, Christians, Friends, Ethical Culturists, Universalists, Unitarians and similar liberal groups.

The Rev. Frank Edwin Smith, of the First Unitarian Church, will preside at the evening meeting, and these clergymen will participate in the service: the Rev. Dr. Carl A. Voss, the Rev. John F. C. Green and the Rev. Warren P. Blodgett.

CATHOLICS OPEN NATIONAL MEET HERE MONDAY

National officers and delegates from several states are expected to attend the twelfth annual conference of the National Conference of Catholic Men opening Monday in the Hotel Schenley. Solemn high mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning in St. Agnes Church, Fifth avenue and Robinson street.

Six meetings will be held during the two-day conference. The public, Catholic and non-Catholic, has been invited to attend them, as well as luncheons.

The conference will be called to order at 10 a. m. Monday by Walter T. Johnson, national president. Joseph H. Reiman, national executive committee member, will preside and Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the Pittsburgh Catholic Diocese, will deliver the address of welcome. Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland, will speak and reports will be made by the national officers, Francis R. Lowther, of St. Louis, national treasurer, and Charles F. Dolle, of Cincinnati, executive secretary.

The Rev. James M. Delaney, diocesan spiritual director of the Holy Name Society, will speak at the luncheon which will be presided over by J. Rogers Flannery. The Rev. George Barlock, pastor of St. Matthew's Church, will be honorary chairman.

State Senator Frank J. Harris and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Gorzynski will be honorary chairmen at the afternoon meeting Monday. Speakers will include Bernard J. Rothwell, of Boston; the Rev. R. A. McGowan, Flannery, Philip Murray, Councilman P. J. McArdle and William J. Lynch, of Chicago.

The Rev. John A. Ryan, professor of moral theology and industrial ethics at the Catholic University of America, will be the principal speaker at Monday night's session. The Rev. Leo J. Schringher will be honorary chairman, and Frank J. Lanahan will be in charge. Joseph A. Beck and L. E. Keller will discuss Dr. Ryan's paper.

Dr. Joseph J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, will be honorary chairman at the fourth session Tuesday morning. John Elbeck will preside.

David E. Martin will preside at the luncheon meeting Tuesday, with the Rev. Charles Mossman as honorary chairman. Dr. Thomas E. Purcell, of Kansas City, will speak.

The fifth session, Tuesday afternoon, will be presided over by Leo G. Griffith, with the Rev. Philip A. Callery acting as honorary chairman.

PYTHIANS FETE CHANCELLOR

Honoring James Dunn, Jr., of Cleveland, supreme chancellor of the International Order of Knights of Pythias, the interstate conference of the Grand Lodge held a banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night.

Mr. Dunn

This is said to be the first visit of a supreme chancellor to Pittsburgh for a regional conference in 20 years. Dunn was escorted to the banquet by the military unit of the knights. Following the dinner, the interstate conference was held in the temple of the Hazelwood Lodge, Second avenue. The meeting was attended by Supreme and Grand Lodge officers, and honors were extended to Dunn by the Uniform Rank, Dramatic Order of the Knights of Khorassan and other Western Pennsylvania delegations.

The reception committee for the chancellor included Col. Louis V. Barach, Capt. S. L. Weiner, Past Chancellor Frank Brunewasser, Col. William Sylvester, and Benjamin Moore.

LUTHERANS HIT MISSION PROBE

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The American Lutheran Conference at its biennial convention yesterday vigorously repudiated findings of the Appraisal Commission of the Laymen's Foreign Mission Inquiry, a report sponsored recently by laymen of seven leading Protestant denominations.

The conference took sharp issue with the laymen's report on the grounds that it "recommends giving up teaching the old doctrines of Christianity in the foreign fields."

The conference adopted the following resolution:

"The American Lutheran Conference would encourage Evangelical Christendom everywhere by reaffirming that the Lutheran Church in obedience to its Lord unalterably continues to preach to all the world the Gospel of Salvation through faith in Jesus Christ alone."

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The retirement or recall of 20 missionary families in the foreign field was recommended yesterday to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the board committee on policy and program. The recommendation was made "in view of the reduced income" of the board, and with "great regret."

DOLL LADY

...is here again...

THIS IS "PRECIOUS" BABY

"PRECIOUS" BABY has real dimpled knees. Her face and limbs are the colors of real skin, her head is almost unbreakable, and her little hands and fingers are soft like a real baby's. "PRECIOUS" BABY is elegantly dressed in lovely organdie, and wears stockings, moccasins and real rubber panties. Every little girl will love her new "PRECIOUS" BABY more than any other doll she has ever had.

A wonderful baby doll with soft rubber arms that feel so real! "PRECIOUS" BABY will shut her eyes and go to sleep, sucking her thumb, like a real baby. "PRECIOUS" BABY is the only doll that can clasp her hands, as in prayer. "PRECIOUS" BABY wears a real pacifier to soothe her when she cries. Her cunning little thumb just fits into her rosy baby mouth. She is 19½ inches tall.

THIS IS "DUCKY DARLING"

"Ducky" Is a Rubber-Bodied Baby Doll With 11-Piece Layette and Bathinette!

Fill the bathinette with water and tub Ducky with the washcloth, sponge and soap! Finish off with powder, then tuck her to bed. She'll close her eyes and sleep just like a real baby! When she wakes, dress her in the diaper, socks, bootees, slip, dress and bonnet! You'll love her—all little girls do!

EASY TO GET! Just a few moments among your neighbors, friends and relatives will get you either one or both of these beautiful dollies. This year you only have to secure 3 NEW six-month subscriptions for the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph—the easy way to get glorious dolls for the holidays.

The Cocktail Hour
(Reprinted by Demand!)

Between the dark and the daylight,
When everyone feels pretty sour,
Comes a lull for a lively libation
That is known as the cocktail hour.

Then's when the orange trees blossom,
And lemons appear by the score,
The ice box is merry with music,
And cracker crumbs cover the floor.

The bacardi flows like Niagara;
The gin bottle gurgles its tune—
The grenadine's pink as a rosebud,
Rare as a day in June.

The ice has the shaker all frosted,
The glasses go clinkity-clink,
And when that first cocktail goes in you
You know that you've guzzled a drink.

A feeling of joy sneaks upon you;
Your black flag of trouble is furled.
In other words, baby, you're cockeyed,
And everything's right with the world.

Two of a Kind

Ed Lowry, now m. c'ing in Chicago, vows it really happened. The Hilton Sisters, Siamese twins, played at a St. Louis house with Lowry two years ago. They came back stage to see Lowry the other night, and after squeezing their joint forms into his dressing room, shyly said:

"We didn't think you'd remember us."

Izzy Elinsonisms

This is one Christmas I intend to shop early. I'm going to get those bundles home before the beer trucks start turning corners . . . Jimmy Walker is Europe-bound, again. The man still thinks he's Mayor! . . . The other night a ham in a local theater gargled: "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" He got sixteen pennies.

Gosh, Yes!

Any sufferer from the pests who send them, will certainly agree with Jules Levine, who thinks that a bigger movie hit would be a flicker called:

"I'm a Fugitive from a Chain-Letter Writer!"

Love, You Funny Thing

The Tribune-Press, of Gouverneur, N. Y., on November 2 contained this ad:

"Referring to the notice of my husband, Stuart E. West, alleging that I left his bed and board without just cause and provocation, I wish here and now to deny the said statement; and would further say that I left his bed and board because I was kicked out as well as ordered out by him—Charlotte West."

In Other Words

C. H. Whiteman, of Saltville, Va., offers a sentence containing "mustache" like this: "Sorry, but mustache you to leave" . . . The Funnyboners toy with "Arabia," thus: Come out, come out Arabia you are! . . . Barney M. Friedman jokes with Peggy Fears' husband's name, like this: The flowers that Blumenthal spring, tra, la . . . Ted Stillman does it this way: Eskimo Christians Italian no lies! . . . It took Betty and Jerome Browne and Lew and Ann Mann to make up one containing "vigilante:" Vigilante me two dollars? . . . J. M. Josefsberg wins today's old typewriter ribbon with his song-title containing "distinct:" "What is distinct called love?"

Add Similes

Bill Flynn's: She was as nervous as a barber waiting for the results of the seventh race.

Cable Stock Goes Up!

We told here how Irving Netcher, and his wife, Rosie Dolly, cabled angrily from Paris the other day demanding a retraction of something they were deceived into believing we had written.

We cabled back (collect) that we never heard of Irving Netcher, and that someone apparently was misinforming him. We were right, it appears. Netcher cables again as follows:

"Sorry I was wrong. Apologize deeply. Mailing you letter I received. Regards."

Oh, these gossips!

Sotto Voce

D. T. H.: It seems a shame, but if you tell her parents, to avoid what you call "a second mesalliance," you'll find it a thankless job. Don't.

Carolyn Mantin: You didn't read it here, lady. It was Burns Mantle who described Lenore Ulric's hair as a busted sofa.

Add Fairy Tales

We should be the last to groan, we know, when the legends about us become annoying. And we rarely grumble, but when they become ridiculous, the urge is strong to stifle them—to oblige future historians, among others, who might be interested.

Thus, a new book called "Radio Round-Ups" contains our likeness and a brief blog, which reports in part:

"Winchell made 'O. K. America' a by-word by radio . . . When he was an usher in a Harlem movie house he conceived the idea of song-slides accompanied by someone singing on the stage. Before long Winchell took two others into partnership. They were Eddie Cantor and George Jessel."

Well, we didn't conceive the song-slide idea, at all. Nor did we take Jessel and Cantor into any partnership with us. They took us with them. And look what happened! Cantor has five daughters, Jessel has Talmadge and we have another column done.

Hearst News Shown

THE GLOBE TROTTER

After having been buried alive for 38 days, Happy "Slim" Jones is seen being taken out of his grave at Annapolis, Md., in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. It is claimed that he remained buried longer than any other living person.

The celebration of Mme. Schuman-Heink's fiftieth anniversary as a song-bird in America, is pictured. The 72-year-old diva is presented with a solid gold plaque by Dr. Paul Schwarz, German consul in New York.

Six of the world's greatest ocean liners, the Majestic, Olympic, Aquitania, Homeric, Mauretania and Empress of India, are seen docked together in Southampton for overhauling.

Jim Londos, champion wrestler, is shown at Los Angeles, in a fierce bout with Joe Savoldi, formerly of the Notre Dame football team. Everything seems to go—punching, butting and kicking. Eventually Savoldi tires and meets the customary fate of all of Londos' victims.

Picturesque views from the quaint French city of Moulins show the townsfolk celebrating the restoration of four automatic bell ringers on the belfrey tower. The mechanism got out of order 148 years ago and the residents of Moulins got round to repairing it only this year. The populace sets up a great cheer at the first sound from the bells.

Irene Dunne In Davis

By EDWARD W. GOSS

The new feature picture in the Davis, "Thirteen Women," leans strongly to the morbid.

Before the action opens there appears on the screen a few short sentences quoting two psychologists on the potent power of suggestion. These quotes are doubtless intended to vouch for the practicability of the story. They also serve to create the desired mood in the minds of the customers.

The villain of this piece, Myrna Loy, employs the power of suggestion in her plot for revenge on several women she believes have wronged her. She mails horoscopes to each of the women. Dire futures are predicted for the receivers of these forecasts and several of the women allow them to prey on their minds to such an extent that they carry out their predictions to the letter.

The plotter coasts along well enough until she decides to wreck the life of a nice young woman portrayed by Irene Dunne. By this time the audience is almost crying for Miss Loy's flaxen scalp. Justice has been outraged so the hero, Ricardo Cortez, in the role of smart detective, puts an end to Miss Loy's villainous acts.

"Thirteen Women" is pure hyperbole in a fairly effective disguise. Nevertheless it holds interest. The weak link lies in the heavy stuff being carried from beginning to close with not a shred of comedy for a let-down. There's no romance either, girls.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CORONA, Cal., Nov. 19.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Two very important items in the papers—"Mr. Roosevelt to visit Mr. Hoover," and "Mr. Roosevelt takes out a $500,000 policy." I do hope these two items together have no (what is it you call it—significance?) Mr. Roosevelt made his policy payable in favor of his pet, and well deserving project, the Infantile Paralysis Home at Warm Springs, Ga. See where the Literary Digest missed the election by 2 and 6 one hundredths of a point. That sheet is certainly going back. Why don't the Digest hold one now to see if we are going to get any dough back from "our friends" overseas? Yours, WILL.

New Dietrich Movie Up In Air

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.

Though both star and director are maintaining a policy of silence, Hollywood whispers that an important development impends in the affairs of Marlene Dietrich and Josef von Sternberg.

Ostensibly, work progressed on the story they are scheduled to do for Paramount, but the starting date is not definite and December is almost here. As both contracts expire in 1932, it will be necessary to make special holdover arrangements if the picture is made.

Miss Dietrich

This of course, is a fairly ordinary procedure and certain studio officials predict that such a move will be made. Questioned on the subject, or in fact upon anything connected with the scheduled picture, Von Sternberg replies there is nothing to say. I haven't talked to Miss Dietrich, but her attorney, Ralph Blum, is equally uncommunicative.

As a matter of fact, the only thing known about the picture is that Von Sternberg flew to the South Atlantic Coast in a supposed attempt to photograph a hurricane.

Questions that Hollywood is asking itself are: (1) What is the mysterious story upon which so much time is being spent? (2) What is back of the silence of Von Sternberg, Miss Dietrich and her attorney? (3) Will the pair sign a new contract with Paramount?

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

Strenuous efforts are under way to have President-elect Roosevelt make a radio address to the assembled motion picture industry at the Academy Awards banquet tonight . . . A cable from M. G. M.'s "Pig Boats" troupe in Hawaii says that they will arrive home at noon on Thanksgiving Day. This means that Robert Montgomery, Jimmie Durante, Robert Young, Eugene Pallette and Jack Conway will eat turkey with their families . . . Gloria Stuart is back from that personal appearance trip to New York and very disappointed because the air journey East was too foggy for her to see land more than a couple of times. Incidentally, did you know that this blonde Universal actress is married to Gordon Newell, the sculptor? . . . Estelle Taylor wires that she will be in the East for some time to come. Meanwhile boy-friend John Warburton was lunching at Al Levy's Tavern recently with Julia Faye. Saw Grant Withers there, too, talking to Lillian Roth . . . Bob Armstrong cracks that Buddy Rogers is "a vocal boy who made good" . . . Unable to accept an invitation to address a New York University class on screen adaptation, Howard Estabrook sent 140 records into which he spoke the entire script and dialogue of "Cimarron."

Spencer Tracy Gets New Contract

Spencer Tracy has signed a new contract with Fox Film Corporation. His first role under the new document will be the male lead, opposite Marian Nixon in "Face in The Sky." He has just completed work in "Pier 13," in which he is co-starred with Joan Bennett. Stuart Erwin will also play a featured part in "Face in The Sky," which Harry Lachman is to direct from Humphrey Pearson's adaptation of Myles Connolly's originial story.

Returns

Brian McDonald, former Pittsburgh master of ceremonies, will open an engagement today in the Nixon Cafe.

Barrymore in Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

John Barrymore compensates for quite a bit of just average work on the screen by the vivid portrayal he gives in "A Bill of Divorcement," movie version of the Clemence Dane play in which Katharine Cornell first attracted serious attention of drama critics. It is in the Warner. For once the movies have not sacrificed the logical ending of the original play for the usual "happy" fadeout that has been thought to be necessary for screen audiences. However, it is not an unhappy ending, either, and is thoroughly satisfying, with one pair of lovers united and another pair separated.

Mr. Barrymore has the role of man who escapes from an asylum after 15 years. Seemingly sane, although the opposite is in his blood, he returns to his home. He arrives just prior to the day set for the wedding of his former wife, who has divorced him and has found promise of happiness in a new union. He is greeted by a daughter who does not even remember him, and who, too, is about to be married.

That is the situation out of which is developed a deeply moving characterization by Mr. Barrymore, whose emotional moods are natural and keyed to varying tensity as he is gradually made aware that he is as a man dead and out of place in the land of the living, and in a time that has passed him by. Out of place except for one person, his daughter.

Katherine Hepburn, new to the screen, plays the part of the girl, for which—verbal bouquets to Miss Hepburn. Billie Burke brings all of her wistful sweetness to a subdued portrayal of the wife.

Prosperity Is At Corner In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Easy to rout the depression if the job is put into the hands of Marie Dressler, who is the heroine of "Prosperity," just around the corner at the Penn Theater this week. Marie is the mother of a young banker, who gets married to Anita Page, who is the daughter of Polly Moran, who is just the sort of mother-in-law the comic papers have told about. While Marie is quarreling with Polly, there's a run on the bank. The son has taken her private bonds and put them up as security for the completion of a building by two rascally contractors. The bank closes, the contractors run off with the bonds, and Marie drinks a reducing medicine by mistake for poison.

Mr. Seibel

All the business knowledge used in this picture was acquired from a close study of the works of Oliver Optic and Horatio Alger. But la Dressler has lots of opportunities to rush around doing things. She almost stops the run on the bank by harangues to the depositors. She starts the wheels of trade by getting everybody to exchange something in kind with somebody else. She even gets the building finished on time by putting on a foreman's cap and paying everybody with orders on traders who owe the bank money.

It's a wild story, crudely put together, with some filling-in as the best of the picture. Mutt, the dog, provides many happy bits, and there is a touching piece of dialogue in which Marie tells about her late husband's last moments, when he wanted strawberries and cream in his December delirium, and she had to give him radishes and buttermilk. Anita Page looks sweet though unhappy; there's a great fight on board a moving train; and Polly Moran almost eats a caterpillar. All of which will show that "Depression" is a grand hodge-podge of all sorts of ideas, all serving no purpose except to give Marie and Polly a chance to scrap with each other. And they do.

Dick Leibert Engaged For Radio City

Dick Leibert, former popular organist in the Penn for a long period, has been engaged to play in International Music Hall, Radio City, New York. The opening bill will be given December 27.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

THERE IS A STORY about three men who were standing in front of a bar and drinking whisky. Two of them were boasting of their travels to various parts of the world. The third man suddenly inquired if either one had ever had the D-T's. Both replied that they had not. "Ah, then," sighed the third, "you can stop boastin'. You ain't been nowhere and you ain't seen nothin'."

D. T. cases interest me to an extreme degree. It is a common belief, I suppose, that all D. T. patients see snakes. Such is not the case. According to a friend of mine, who is highly interested in the subject from a psychological standpoint, these patients never see snakes. They see a number of other things, however.

In the rum ward of a well-known hospital the other night, for instance, there was one chap who was certain that his feet were always uncovered. No matter how many covers were heaped on him, he fancied his feet were stark naked. Then he began to see things. To his distorted mind he evidently thought that a huge bridge extended from the end of his bed and stretched for miles and miles. A little red dot would start at the end of the bridge and grow larger and larger until it became a camel!

Then there are the truck drivers who arrive at various hospitals with D. T. illusions. The truck drivers, for some strange reason, always have the same experience. They keep driving through traffic, cursing, and pulling an imaginary wheel this way and that.

It is when they attempt to back up that the doctors and nurses know the end is at hand. Backing up inevitably means death. No truck driver who is suffering D. T.'s, I am told, and attempted to back up, has lived.

One of the funniest cases of its kind I have ever heard came up in a doctor's office just a short time ago. A man walked into the medico's establishment and asked to be looked over. The doctor asked him what the trouble was, and he explained that he thought he had D. T.'s.

The doctor looked at him.

"Do you," he inquired, "ever see things?"

"No, sir," replied the patient very positively, "I never see anything."

The doctor then asked if he drank to excess. This, too, the patient denied. Finally, the doctor grew annoyed.

"Listen," he cried, "you say you don't drink and you say you don't see things. Get out of here and come back when you decide to tell the truth."

The man departed. An hour later he was back again, his hat in his hand and looking very contrite.

"Pardon me, doctor," he murmured. "When you asked me before if I was seein' things, did you mean that little red goat that's always followin' me around?"

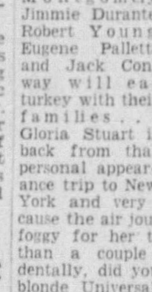
MUSIC

Lotte Lehmann
Carnegie Music Hall

The Art Society last night presented a new singer in Carnegie Music Hall, Lotte Lehmann, soprano of the Vienna Opera. She is the soprano for whom we have waited since Gerhardt and Culp come no more, a singer unaffected by fads of the day in music, a singer who knows classic song literature and proves to the last nuance how stimulating and ravishing is the beauty of those songs.



Mr. Lissfelt

Her program was generous in its materials and in the singing thereof. And her voice, in every way superior to the above named singers, is brilliant, luscious and haunting. In fact, though the high voice becomes a little wayward on occasion, under the spell of Lehmann's musicianship, of her versatile dramatic understanding, of the sheer abandon of her singing, one is conscious only of great music being superlatively well projected.

The program was a model of its kind. Gluck's apostrophe to the divinities of Styx lent a sinister note at the beginning. Three Schubert songs of broad contrasts with a ghostly lonely tone for the "Young Nun" such as we have never before heard. Who could choose a favorite among the Liszt songs? The nostalgic "Mignon's Song," the tender lovely "Es Muss Ein Wunderbares Sein" or the sweeping realism of the "Lorelei." The charm of the Schumann songs in their simplicity, with the "Nussbaum" as encore, were excellently placed between more startling music. The two songs of Balogh were enough touched with modernism to pique our curiosity and to know them better, especially that majestic cathedral song, "Wem Gilt der Gesang."

Marx, too, is becoming well known as he deserves, and the two examples of this romantic writer left nothing to be desired. Since Richard Strauss chooses Lotte Lehmann to create many of his operatic parts, it is only natural that she should so fully comprehend his music. Both "Befreit" and the "Heimliche Aufforderung" were utterly satisfying.

The audience responded whole heartedly to Madame Lehmann's art. At the close of her program she added Schubert's "Serenade" and Cyril Scott's "Blackbird Song." Doubtless in the next years we shall hear this singer often.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

DR. FELLOWS

Carnegie Lecture Hall

The Sigma Alpha Iota musical fraternity of Carnegie Tech yesterday afternoon presented Dr. Edwin H. Fellows at Carnegie Lecture Hall. Dr. Fellows is a noted authority on music of the sixteenth century-early art music, church music, and the madrigal—and chose to speak on the "English Madrigal" on this occasion.

He brought many interesting phonographic records, but better still were the ballads and madrigals sung by the choir of 20 voices from Carnegie Tech, recruits from Miss Kenley's students. It was a most profitable hour listening to this lecture.

BRITISH BANKER FAVORS HIGHER GOLD PRICES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Political discussion of monetary issues during the presidential campaign threw little light on the subject.

It tended to become one of the most important questions before the world, namely, whether to seek to freeze the current low price level, or to seek to restore the higher level of 1929 or of some other year.

Mr. Rukeyser

If it were possible to go back, one advantage would be that it would tend to validate existing capitalization, which has been thrown out of kilter by the existing price level. In this connection, it should be borne in mind that already too much water has gone over the dam to do anything like restoring the status quo ante. Any fundamental relief will come too late for those who have already lost title to their property.

WOULD EXPAND CREDIT

Numerous economists, including Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, argue in favor of a return to a higher level. This argument is succinctly set forth by Sir Arthur Salter, in his chapter in the book entitled "The World's Economic Crisis and the Way of Escape." Sir Arthur contends:

"I should like to see gold prices brought back to the level at which they stood in 1929 before the depression began. And after that I should like to see an approximate stability in the general price level. If the first could be achieved, a new stimulus would be given to enterprise, and the burden of debt, both public and private, would be lightened. If the second were possible, recovery, once attained, would have a much better chance of being permanent.

"Gold prices could be raised if countries with a gold surplus would use their gold to create a bigger volume of credit and money; in other words, if there were a limited inflation in America and France. This would increase imports into these countries—and indeed would be as useless if it were prevented from doing so by new tariffs.

RESULTS RESTRICTED

"So, too, when a tolerable level of world prices has been regained, the level would afterwards be kept reasonably stable, if the world were agreed and determined. Central banks in coperation could, within certain limits, maintain short term stability by their customary methods."

At home, the cheapening money process thus far has had only restricted results. It has, it is true, brought the rate on so-called riskless investments—the short term paper of the United States Treasury—down to absurdly low levels, but thus far there is no disposition on a substantial scale to invest capital in productive industry. Lenders are unwilling to lend long term capital at a rate which potential borrowers think they can afford to pay.

Before the depression, there was too much disposition to buy capital at any price. Lenders were as careless as borrowers in failing to assess the real capacity of an industry to pay for borrowed capital. For example, projects, which may be destined for failure when they pay upwards of 6 per cent for their capital, could conceivably thrive on 3 per cent money.

U. S. COULD LEAD

Lenders who seek safety should in the future consider whether they are laying unenforceable burdens on the borrower. Where a lender deliberately shows moderation, he should insist that at least a part of the residue of earnings be used to amortize, or gradually pay off, the loan. Failure of industries systematically to reduce indebtedness in times of good earnings leaves them out on a limb in hard times.

As a practical immediate matter, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in making self liquidating loans, should recognize that the validity of loans can be heightened by moderation in interest charges. Not being a profit seeking agency, the government is in position to set an example for private financiers.

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Tabloid review of wholesale and retail business conditions as reported to Bradstreet's this week from the following centers, on the basis of comparisons with conditions in the same areas in the corresponding week last year:

	Whole. and Job. Trade	Retail Trade	Mfg. and Industry	Collections
Pittsburgh	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow
Chicago	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Fair
Cleveland	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Detroit	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Indianapolis	Fair	Fair	Fair	Slow
Louisville	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Milwaukee	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Des Moines	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Duluth	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Kansas City	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Minneapolis	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Omaha	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
St. Louis	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow
St. Paul	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow
Baltimore	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow

Pittsburgh—Coal inquiries more numerous with advent of cold weather; glass output restricted; holiday orders stimulate demand for tableware; building confined to residences and remodeling.

Chicago—Increased buying in all lines maintained; closing of four open hearth furnaces reduces steel operating capacity to 17-18 per cent; automobile and railroad industries releasing fair steel orders; coal consumption on upgrade.

Cleveland—Post-election sentiment has good influence on trade; steel mills continue at 35 per cent of capacity; retailing maintains recent gains; advances in food prices scored heavily over last week's declines.

Detroit—Retail trade maintains recent gains, but continues far below 1931; wholesale orders small and buying cautious; automobile industry stimulating production of 1933 display models; collections two points below a year ago.

RESERVE NOTES BACKED BY 75% GOLD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Federal Reserve banks of the country are backing their $2,925,250,000 of currency in circulation with more than 75 per cent gold, though the law requires only 40 per cent gold to secure the system's money.

Latest Treasury records show that Federal Reserve banks have deposited with Federal Reserve agents and the Treasury a total of $2,241,169,000 in gold to secure its note circulation.

This huge gold reserve against the circulation, while not the largest on record, remains despite enactment of the Glass-Steagall law, which permits the banks, under certain conditions, to substitute government securities for the 60 per cent eligible paper required in addition to the minimum of 40 per cent gold to pledge Reserve banks currency.

GLASS BILL FREES PAPER

The banks, however, have taken advantage of the Glass-Steagall act to the extent of replacing eligible paper with $423,300,000 of government securities. They have $290,799,000 of eligible paper deposited against the circulation.

The banks at one time early in the year had approximately 90 per cent of their circulation backed by gold. Shortly after this the Glass-Steagall law was passed to permit the banks to draw down needed gold if the occasion arose and the Federal Reserve Board approved. It provided the banks with a reservoir from which they could replenish stocks of free gold that could be paid out over the counter.

AIDS NATIONAL BANKS

National banks also have taken advantage of the legislation passed by the last session of Congress under the Glass-Borah amendment to the home loan bank act. They have deposited with the Treasury approximately $135,750,000 in government securities to back national bank circulation.

Before this amendment only certain forms of two per cent government bonds were eligible as backing for national bank currency. The act made government securities carrying not more than 3⅜ per cent interest eligible to back the currency of national banks.

National banks now have outstanding $872,517,493 in currency of which $858,447,524 is in circulation. The amount in circulation is about $148,000,000 more than early in July when the amendment went into effect. The Glass-Borah amendment, if used to the maximum, would permit a currency expansion of approximately $1,000,000,000.

FATHER COX SPEEDS WORK

Father Cox is not greatly disturbed because the extremely cold storm wave that just hit almost all other sections of the country—north, west and east—has not swooped down on Pittsburgh.

The longer the bitter cold weather stays away the more opportunity will his two communities—"Coxtown" and "Shantytown" have to make their winter quarters more comfortable. Volunteer carpenters and la

STOCK PRICES IRREGULARLY LOWER

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—In a quiet market which appeared to be almost entirely professional, stocks moved irregularly lower in today's early trading.

American Smelting was down 1, while fractional losses occurred in United Aircraft, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Case, Chesapeake and Ohio, Corn Products, General Motors, Harvester and Southern Pacific. United States Steel common was steady. The preferred was off ½. American Can, Eastman, Lambert, Montgomery Ward, Pacific Gas, Standard of New Jersey and Sears Roebuck were slightly higher.

Week-end trade reports indicated that seasonal declines were occurring in most lines of business with, however, fair stability reported in retail lines. The steel industry reported a continuation of many small miscellaneous buying orders, but none of the major consumers like the motor, building and rail companies had as yet placed sizeable orders.

The Department of Labor reported a gain of 1.1 per cent in last October's employment, while payrolls gained 3.8 per cent.

The question of war debts again occupied the spotlight of banking interest and the report that President Hoover is now working on definite recommendations which he will make to his successor, Gov. Roosevelt, was favorably construed as an indication of bi-partisan co-operation.

Sterling slipped off a cent at the opening of the foreign exchange market to $3.28⅝ for cables.

AVIATION SUIT WITHDRAWN

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The libel suit on which action was started Thursday appeared last night to have been dropped by Lamotte T. Cohu as a result of the compromise effected between him and E. L. Cord in their fight for control of the Aviation Corporation.

When papers were served Thursday on two members of the firm of E. F. Hutton & Co., the defendant corporation, it was said the libel action, asking $1,000,000, would be filed in a Long Island court yesterday. No such action was filed during the day, however. It had been said that Cohu would charge he had been libeled in a pamphlet issued by the Hutton company regarding the Cohu-Cord controversy.

The fight ended with a statement that the two sides had agreed to a new division of the board of directors, whereby the Cord interests were to name five members, the present management headed by Cohu five and the two groups to agree jointly on a third group of five members.

Industry Enters Stage To Be Marked By Dullness

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

DEVELOPMENTS IN TRADE and industry in recent weeks have shown no definite trend. Gains have appeared in some quarters only to be counterbalanced by declines in others. Steel mills which roll material used in the automobile industry have increased their output, while other types of mills have reduced their schedules.

This uncertain situation should cause no apprehension. In fact, it is favorable rather than unfavorable.

We have come into the time of the year in which a seasonal decline usually takes place. But the normal decline has been overcome in many cases by unexpected demands from isolated sources. This has kept the seasonal decline for industry as a whole from reaching its usual proportions. Such stability at a time when activity should be on the skids can only be interpreted as an indication that the low level for the depression was reached last summer.

Startling Business News Not Expected

BUSINESS NEWS of a sensational character, either good or bad, is not to be expected before the end of the year. Of course, some unanticipated event may crop up and have a pronounced effect on the future. But barring a great stroke of good luck or a great catastrophe, business appears likely to drift through a dull period extending from the present into the early weeks of the new year.

During this period, which will be lacking in a general trend, business discussion is likely to be centered on such problems as the effect of a change in the prohibition laws on general business, on the problem faced by many corporations in adjusting the book values of their assets to current conditions and on the possibilities of further stabilizing the bank situation.

Prohibition Claims Found Conflicting

EXTRAVAGANT CLAIMS have been made about the beneficial effects of a change in the prohibition laws by those favoring modification while equally extravagant denials of such benefits have been made by the drys.

So far as the effect on the unemployment situation goes, the outlook appears uncertain. It is difficult to secure reliable statistics on this point. Figures showing the number of men actually employed by breweries and wine makers before prohibition do not tell the whole story. A change in the prohibition laws would have far-reaching influences in many other industries. More bottles would be made; new equipment would be sold; new trucks would be needed, and building might be stimulated. Real estate conditions would be helped if the new laws should permit the return of the saloon or the old wine dealer. Employment might be helped through the need for remodeling mercantile properties to provide retail outlets for the revived industry.

On the other hand, while many legitimate jobs would be provided, thousands now engaged in the bootleg liquor trade would find themselves jobless. While there undoubtedly would be a general improvement resulting from the taxing of the legitimate beer and wine trade, the general employment situation might not be improved when we balance racketeers out of work against men given lawful employment. It seems probable that much temporary employment will be given in remodeling breweries and properties for handling wines and liquor. This will be helpful. But the permanent beneficial effect of modifying the prohibition laws will be in the direction of increasing taxes and in replacing an illegal business with a legal business rather than in a net improvement in steady employment.

TRADE BALANCE TOPS 1931

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The largest favorable trade balance for any month of the present year was announced today by the commerce department, which said exports in October amounted to $163,000,000, while imports were $106,000,000. The balance of $47,000,000 was larger by $11,000,000 than October of last year.

For the 10 months of the fiscal year there has been a favorable trade balance of $220,215,000, exports having totaled $1,341,915,000 and imports $1,121,700,000.

While the report was based on preliminary figures it was said at the department that a general picking up in all lines of business was indicated as cotton shipments provided only $7,000,000 of the increase.

In September cotton exports totaled $32,000,000, while in October, they amounted to $39,000,000.

The report showed that the United States gained $20,617,000 of gold in the month, having imported $20,674,000 and having exported only $57,000. For the 10 months of the year gold exports exceeded imports by $568,808,000, totaling $809,495,000 against $240,687,000.

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Everyone had a very gay time indeed at the supper-dance and bridge given at the Longue Vue Country Club last night for the benefit of the West Penn Hospital, under the auspices of the West Penn Cot Club. Members of the younger set as well as their mothers and fathers were there, and a very brilliantly gowned gathering it was, with red seeming to be a favorite color.

Arriving late, I saw Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins wearing lipstick red crepe with a long velvet coat of deeper red. Mrs. James M. Duncan's gown was of garnet crepe, very draped of skirt. Scarlet crepe fashioned the gown worn by attractive Annette Chester, with brief cap sleeves, with which she wore a long coat of black velvet and white fox, and she was chatting with Katherine Ward, in a sophisticated black crepe model.

One of the most distinctive gowns there was Catherine Bell's of heavy lustrous white satin having a very long skirt and tri-cornered capelet draped cowl-wise at the neckline. Her wrap was of Delft blue velvet.

Mrs. Robert Carson, Jr., was there chatting vivaciously with everyone, and wore black chiffon and lace. I saw Mrs. Marjorie Evans Stewart with Mrs. James M. Dalby, chairman of the affair, who wore dove grey chiffon. Brunette Peggy Berger's costume was of plum colored velvet having a deep decolletage finished with a wide bar of brilliants. Tall and slender LaSalle Dorrance's gown was of classically molded velvet with a wide scarf forming brief sleeves.

In Black Chiffon

A deb of last year, Margaret Mann, I saw, wearing scintilating black satin with a scarf of white satin draped around the shoulders and tying very low in the back, with her was Mrs. A. Cameron Mann in phantom red crepe and as she entered the club she was wearing a blue and bold brocaded wrap. Mrs. C. S. B. Ward looked charming in white crepe having a cowl decolletage and Mrs. John V. Kimerer chose brilliant red crepe.

Blue crepe with cape sleeves banded with kolinsky was the choice of Mrs. P. K. Motheral, and red crepe that of Mrs. James McKay. Regal looking Mrs. Carl J. Seyler appeared in blue-green pebble crepe.

There was a pre-view yesterday afternoon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association of the children's educational movies being shown this morning at the Nixon, under the auspices of the Junior League. The films, grouped under the title of the "Children's Hour," are camera studies of the lives of insects and animals and plants.

Child Movie

There is one on spiders showing several different species and their habits and how they spin their webs; another on frogs, and an intriguing study of seed life called "Seed Dispersal," showing the unusual methods plants employ in seeding themselves. "Beach and Sea Animals" is also included among the films, which are purely scientific, and though not so interesting perhaps to the tiny tots, their older brothers and sisters probably will get a great deal more out of it than from their text books, because pictures always amuse them more than words.

Mrs. H. H. McClintic entertained at a luncheon yesterday in her home.

Luncheon Hostess

The Roy A. Hunts are in New York, just now. And did you know that Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards and their daughter, Katherine, are in Lexington, Ky.? Whether or not they'll be home for Thanksgiving no one seems to know.

The Stage and Play Society board is going to pore over play manuscripts tomorrow and have tea with Mrs. George P. Barrett, Jr., as hostess.

Pittsburgh Man, California Girl Wed

After the first of the new year, the junior Edward William Gwinners will be at home in Pittsburgh following a honeymoon in Honolulu and a motor trip from Los Angeles to Pittsburgh by the southern route.

They were married yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in All Saints Church, Beverly Hills, Cal. Mrs. Gwinner is the former Elizabeth Day, of Los Angeles, daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. Ruddy, of Los Angeles, and Mr. Gwinner is the son of the Edward William Gwinners, of Pittsburgh.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, C. B. Day, of Long Beach, Cal., wore an ivory satin gown made in the Princess mode. Her veil of ivory tulle cascaded from a rosepoint lace and orange blossom cap over the long satin train of her gown. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her maid of honor, Dorothy Youngbluth, of Los Angeles, and her bridesmaids, Frances Shoup, of Los Angeles; Marion Cool, Beverly Hills; Margaret Denault, of Los Angeles, all wore gowns of talisman rose crepe. Marjorie Day was her sister's flower girl.

Serving as best man was Lieut. Ericson Snowden Nichols, of the Army Air Corps, who flew from New York for the wedding. The ushers were Clement Harts, New York; John Hair, Long Beach; Jaquelin Hume, Pasadena, all classmates of the bridegroom at Princeton, Harvard and Leland Stanford.

A reception in the Ruddy home for 200 guests followed the wedding. The bride's table, the Ruddy home and the church were all decorated with autumn flowers, with chrysanthemums predominating.

Oliver Minnemyer, of Pittsburgh, uncle of the bridegroom, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, his sister-in-law, and his parents, went from Pittsburgh to the ceremony.

The bride's mother wore bronze velvet, and the bridegroom's mother, blue velvet.

Alumnae of Goucher Guests of Mrs. Ramsey, Jr.

At today's meeting of the Goucher College Alumnae Association in the home of Mrs. H. E. Ramsey, Jr., Balph avenue, Bellevue, Mrs. L. Clyde Bixler, the president is reporting the recent alumnae council which she attended as a delegate. Mrs. Ramsey's aides this afternoon are Mrs. Claire Kinter, Mrs. F. C. Hoenninger and Mrs. Paul Purchard.

Fraternity's Football Dance on Thanksgiving

The annual Gamma Phi fraternity football dance at Duquesne University will be held Thursday evening in the Hotel Schenley.

Lehmann Recital Attended by Smart Set

Not in years has an audience in Pittsburgh been so responsive or felt more in communion with an artist than the music-loving audience last night at Carnegie Music Hall, there to hear Lotte Lehman, the soprano from Vienna.

With no coquetting with the audience, with no stage tricks whatsoever, she won hundreds and hundreds of devotees.

One of the artist's eager listeners was Rosemary Casey, Pittsburgh's young society playwright. She looked charming in a pale violet chiffon gown having double circular capes of chiffon over the shoulder.

Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, wearing black velvet, was there, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, Jr., in flax blue.

Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, a faithful concert goer, was in the audience, as were Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Dr. H. G. Schleiter, Dr. Thomas Baker, and Mrs. D. M. Clemson in ice-blue lace.

Mrs. A. P. Brill looked smart in a gown of black chiffon having a deep v-decolletage in back. With her mother was Mrs. Edwin Ruud in black crepe.

Representing the post-debutante set was Katharine Frazer. Mrs. John E. Nelson, in black velvet, was accompanied by her young daughter, Peggy, in green crepe and a green velvet wrap. Miss Helen Rauh chose garnet-red velvet.

Travelogue to Be Given For Mu Pi Zeta Club

Miss Edith Bane will give her around-the-world travelogue and show stereopticon views of it at the monthly meeting of Mu Pi Zeta Club in the Congress of Clubs Monday evening.

Miss Stewart to Marry On Thanksgiving Day

Miss Aliscena Marion Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Rose Stewart, of Schoyer avenue, Swissvale, has chosen Thanksgiving Day for her marriage to Edward L. Kramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kramer, of Valencia.

The announcement was made at a party in the home of the bride-elect on November 9, by Miss Frances Stewart, who will be the maid of honor at the wedding. Carl Lewis will serve as best man.

Entertainments honoring Miss Stewart have been numerous. Among those who have given parties for her are Mrs. James D. Wilson, Mrs. J. W. Funk and Mrs. Charles H. Krick.

Mr. Kramer and his bride will be at home after December 1, in the Loutellus Apartments, Melwood street, East End.

Bicentennial Chapter To Meet on Tuesday

A meeting of the Bicentennial Chapter of the Delphian Society will be held Tuesday evening in Carnegie Library.

Rodef Shalom Parents And Teachers to Meet

The first of the season's parent-teacher meetings at Rodef Shalom Religious School is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon in the Temple. The principal speaker is Dr. Samuel P. Franklin, head of the department of religious education at the University of Pittsburgh, who will discuss methods by which the home may further the aims of the religious school. Parents will meet their children's teachers in their class rooms prior to the meeting.

Mrs. Denman to Speak Monday in Wilkinsburg

Mrs. David Denman, member of the State Legislature, having recovered from her recent illness, will be able to keep her engagement to speak before the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club on Monday afternoon. She is to talk on "Legislation Affecting Women" in the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. W. C. Anderson is leader for the afternoon.

Resurrection Players To Give Comedy Tuesday

The Resurrection Players Club will present a comedy, "The First Year" at the Brookline Public School Auditorium Tuesday evening.

Homestead Club To Present Pageant

Costumes worn by the members in bygone days will be resurrected for the "pageant of memory" which Mrs. H. D. Everett has arranged for the thirty-fifth anniversary of the Homestead Woman's Club. The club is to celebrate on Monday afternoon in its rooms in Carnegie Library, the pageant, under Mrs. W. J. Quigley's direction being the chief feature of the afternoon.

A year after it organized the club joined the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, an important step in its history. In 1910 it became affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and two years ago joined the then comparatively new Allegheny County Federation. Mrs. C. C. Rinard is president this year, and among her predecessors have been many well known women of the borough.

Bridgeville Club Group To Give Benefit Dinner

As a benefit for the clubhouse fund, the club activities committee of the Bridgeville Woman's Club will serve a chicken dinner at the clubhouse Tuesday evening from 5:30 until 8 o'clock.

Founder Reviews Sheraden Club's 25 Years

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

It is rather difficult to realize that one woman's organization can have worked for and accomplished as many things as has the Sheraden Woman's Club in the 25 years of its existence. An astounding number of achievements were recalled in a history of the organization presented yesterday by its founder, Mrs. Charles A. Banker, at the silver anniversary reception in Mrs. R. T. Lewis' home.

The women worked to give Sheraden a high school—Langley; they obtained free mail delivery and bought street signs and house numbers; they have contributed to various scholarship funds and have established one of their own; they inaugurated tree planting and helped bring a playground to their town; theirs was the first club to join the Blind Association and they inaugurated a community Halloween celebration with prizes for the costumes and floats. The sale of $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds was only one bit of their extensive war work. Indeed, their history is a long, proud account of civic and educational achievement.

At the close of her talk, during which the 25 candles on the huge white birthday cake had been lighted, Mrs. Banker was presented with a silver basket which was subsequently filled with huge chrysanthemums in the club colors, yellow and white, by past presidents or their representatives.

Mrs. Milton C. Reno, a former president, conducted a memorial service and also gave recognition to former members who were present. Mrs. Edward M. Wilson, the president, led the program, which also included music by Richard Knotts, with Howard Neff accompanying; a string trio composed of Dorothy Ryan Nesbitt Hertzler, Anne and Mildred Hertzler Hissom, and a vocal quartet, which included Mrs. Mary Worley, Mrs. Florence Letcher, Mrs. Virginia King and Mrs. Ruth Marshall.

Christmas Sale Units to Be Appointed

Mrs. Joseph C. McCune, of Edgewood, is president of the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary, and will appoint the committee this week for the Christmas Sale which is to be held on Saturday, December 3, from 11 until 5 o'clock in the parlor of the Hotel Schenley.

The proceeds of the sale will be used for the maintenance of the children's ward of the hospital. During the past year, in addition to the general expense of the children's ward, the auxiliary purchased two carts for the operating room, a light fixture for the tonsil and adenoid room and helped to buy new equipment for the X-ray department.

FASHION INSISTS ON BRIGHT HUES FOR EVENING COSTUMES

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Evening clothes, says Paris, like the occasions they grace, must be brilliant. The present fashion may countenance, in fact, encourage, somber colors and dull fabrics by day, but night lights must shine upon bright hues and vivid shining materials. There is a return to satin and velvet—even those of the most brilliant types. Some houses make use of new silk jerseys that are woven so that they reflect bright lights as if they were waxy satins.

THE MOST gleamingly bright satins available have been used by Maggy Bescancon de Wagner in designing the collection of evening gowns for the house of Maggy-Rouff. Cire satins and silk weaves that have a touch of gold thread here and there in their textures are great favorites. The gowns themselves are simply made to allow the brilliance of the fabric full play under artificial lights; they are worn with glittering jewels, and if flowers are permitted, they are those with waxy, shining leaves.

THE BRIGHTEST red possible is the color Chanel chooses for the dinner and after-dinner dress, also sketched. As the illustration shows it uses no contrasting color or trick trimming devices, resorting entirely to puffs to outline the neckline and mark a line from throat to shoulders, along the outside of the sleeve.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK
With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The administering of first-aid in my field doesn't apply exclusively to human beings. There are times when one also rushes to the aid of stricken animals. It's all in the game.

Which reminds me of a story.

Let me begin by saying that all of the hauling in Asiatic jungle territory is done by bovines. The chief of these is the humped bullock of India, known zoologically as the zebu.

In the summer of 1931 I was hauling a tiger (which I had transferred from a trap to one of those heavy native log-cages dowelled and lashed together with rattan) along a jungle trail, in one of the typical native carts drawn by a pair of bullocks. The scene was North Johore, and Ali and I were moving our striped freight into Senni where I had concentrated quite a collection of animals, preparatory to transferring the lot to Singapore. This tiger—a first-rate specimen—was to be added to the collection.

All through the Malay country there are bog holes in the lighter jungles, mostly in high grass. These are usually the result of underground springs over which the earth caves in.

FALLS INTO HOLE

These bogs sometimes cover an area of 10 feet square or more. Most of them, however, are smaller than this. In some instances they are full of water; in other cases they are just holes in the ground with anywhere from a foot to two feet of slimy ooze at the bottom. The depth varies from three to eight feet.

We were moving along with our cageful of tiger trying to locate the jungle trail that would take us to our destination, when all of a sudden our right-hand bullock disappeared from sight. He had toppled into a bog hole!

These bullocks are hitched with a wooden yoke across the top of the neck and a rope neckband that goes around the throat. Our luckless bovine, his head barely above the ground, was hanging by the rope of his yoke, a fine way to strangle to death.

As the bullock dropped into the hole the cart gave a sudden jolt that sent Ali and me sprawling on the ground. I jumped to my feet, gave a quick look to see that the fastenings of the tiger cage had not been loosened by the jar, and made for the treacherous bog where the bullock, eyes bulging and tongue lolling, was thrashing around with its front hoofs in a frantic effort to get a foothold by means of which it could raise itself out of the hole—a futile proceeding.

SINKS INTO MUD

There was only one thing to do. I got out a heavy sheath-knife I always wear in my belt in the field or jungle, and severed the rope that would have choked the animal to death in another minute or two.

The bullock now sank deep into the hole, its head disappearing beneath the level of the ground. The mud at the bottom was almost of quicksand texture.

In a nearby field six Malays were working. I yelled to them and they came running over. I told them what I planned to do and they agreed to help.

I got out my lasso and fastened the loop-end around the animal's horns. Then I sent Ali scrambling up a tree that had a stout limb overhanging the hole. I tossed my end of the rope to Ali and he threw it over the limb. Then the nine of us—the six field-hands, Ali, the cart-driver, and I—started yanking away, but we couldn't budge the animal, whose agonized bellowing grew louder and louder as it sank deeper into the hole.

We should have been able to lift the animal out — for its weight, 1,000 pounds, was not much for nine men to shift—but the fact remains that we were unable to do it on account of the lack of proper equipment. Had we had a block and tackle, four of us would have been able to manage it easily. The best we could do was to bear down on the rope and keep the animal from sinking any deeper.

ANIMAL IS SAVED

I sent Ali to round up further help while the rest of us clung to the rope. The boy returned in about 15 minutes with four Chinese wood-choppers. Then the 13 of us started hauling away. Our combined efforts were enough to pull the bullock out.

Strangely enough, it developed that the sturdy creature was uninjured. His hindquarters were full of black muck where he had sunk, standing upright, up to his haunches, but aside from that he was none the worse for his experience.

Shortly afterwards we were rumbling along on our way to Senni as if nothing had happened.

Some years ago I bought a tiger that a Malay boy had caught up in the Indragiri district of Central Sumatra. I needed this animal to supplement two I had caught myself. I had orders calling for three of the striped cats and I was fortunate to be able to augment my own catches with this one. I needed all the time I could find, as there were a number of other animals—also birds and reptiles—that I had to round up before I set sail, at an early date, for the United States.

The tiger arrived on a little Dutch boat that makes a weekly trip down the Indragiri River, along the east coast of Sumatra and across to Singapore.

I sent old Ali to get it off the boat. He loaded it onto a sampan and brought it ashore at Singapore. From there it was hauled by motor truck to my compound at Katong, about eight miles away.

It didn't take me long to see that the animal had developed a bad injury since the day I had personally viewed it in Sumatra, a few weeks before.

TREATMENT UNWELCOMED

There was a large festered area between two of the toes of his left back foot. This area was alive with worms and maggots and it was obvious that I would either lose the animal through blood poisoning or have a cripple on my hands unless something was done quickly. Natives are notorious for their lack of cleanliness in handling animals. Unless ordered to do so, it seldom occurs to them to clean a cage. This animal's alarming infection probably started with a scratch. Filthy cage conditions, it was safe to guess, did the rest.

I got busy at once trying to devise a means of cleaning the tiger's wound. Prompt action was imperative.

I took a long bamboo pole, wrapped a cloth around one end and dipped this into a solution I made by adding some water to a strong antiseptic. I was wasting my time. The animal—a big vicious specimen whose temper was not improved by his injury—would have none of my attentions. With a snarl of rage he slapped the pole to one side at least a dozen times; then, when I persisted, he took it in his mouth and bit the end off.

Some other means of ministering to that ugly wound would have to be devised. I finally hit upon the idea of using a brass force pump. I succeeded in getting hold of one that, aided and abetted by a fine nozzle, shot a narrow stream of water 10 to a dozen feet. For a whole hour I practiced shooting at targets with this pump until I became fairly expert.

INJURY HEALS

Having rehearsed sufficiently with water, I filled the pump with my antiseptic solution and got to work on the tiger's wound. At first the animal eluded me, snarling as before. But I finally made a clean hit. I shot a stream right into the great soggy fester. It landed with such force that quite a few maggots were washed out.

The tiger howled with rage, for he didn't particularly like the sting of the powerful mixture I was using, and for half an hour I could do nothing with him. He kept lunging at the bars, trying to see how hard he could make my job. But I was encouraged by my first hit and made up my mind to stick to it. After much patient effort I managed to clean out the wound.

For three weeks I gave the animal a daily treatment and, as healthy flesh started growing around the wound, I weakened my solution. After a week or so the animal grew so accustomed to the pump that if he happened to be lying down when I flashed it he wouldn't even trouble to get up as I sprayed his wound.

It wasn't long before this ailing jungle cat was sound again. He lost one claw (which practically dropped off) but that didn't prevent him from being as spry and agile as he ever was. It takes the loss of more than a claw to make a cripple out of a tiger.

I got this ex-invalid back to America in excellent shape and sold him to a zoo for a good price.

First-aid had probably saved his life—and my investment.

PITT, TECH ELEVENS SET

NO FOE SCORES ON PANTHERS OF 1910

IN NAMING A few teams that made the record at which Colgate will be aiming against Brown on Thanksgiving Day, that of going through a full season without being scored on, the football historians appear to have overlooked the fact that the University of Pittsburgh had an eleven among those attaining that distinction. The great Panther team coached by Joe Thompson in 1910 not only won every event on a nine-game schedule, but not a single point was scored against it during the season.

Dr. Herbert Dewar

Ohio Northern, Westminster, Waynesburg, Georgetown, Ohio Medical, West Virginia, W. & J., Carnegie Tech and Penn State were shut out in the order named, the Panthers meanwhile rolling up 282 points, an average of better than 30 to a game. Dr Herbert (Tillie) Dewar, now a practicing dentist in Elizabeth, was the quarterback and sparkplug of that powerful machine. Tex Richards, captain and fullback, was the offensive ace, a great line plunger, passer and kicker. Other players were Polly Galvin, Jack Lindsay, Dr. C. B. Quailey, Dr. James Stevenson, Norman Budd, Billy Hittner, George Brown, Andy Blair, Dave Richards, George Gehlert, George Bailey, John Frankel, Robert Peacock, Charles Keed, Raymond Butler and Dr. Robert Hinchman.

THE FACT THAT college football games have been drawn out this year a half hour longer than formerly doesn't mean that there has been any more action. It's just more dead time, due to the new rules. The ball, as in the past, is in play only 12 minutes or less.

For instance; a check on the Pitt-Nebraska game last Saturday in Lincoln showed that the teams actually played only 11 minutes and 53 seconds out of the regulation 60 minutes allotted for action. Pitt had possession of the ball 5 minutes and 37 seconds, executing 53 running plays, and the Huskers held the pigskin 6 minutes and 16 seconds, making 61 running plays.

HEE-HAWING AT THE statement of Hiker Joy, Fordham assistant coach, that college grid teams are superior to pros, Curley Lambeau, coach of the Green Bay Packers, declares any pro team could spot the best college eleven two touchdowns and beat it.

Lambeau says the Packers will meet any college team in a charity game and play for nothing just to settle the point.

"THE FORDHAM COACH probably got his professional experience back in the days when coaches came out on Sundays to play on town teams," Lambeau said. "Our boys do nothing but play football. If any college team devoted as much time to practice and skullwork as we do, the faculty would rise up in arms. If the college boys would run our ends as easily as Coach Joy says they would, how do you account for the fact that Red Grange and others who were great end runners in college can't even get started around such men as Lavvie Dilweg, of our team; Luke Johnson, of the Chicago Bears; Ray Flaherty, of the Giants, or Bill McKalip, of Portsmouth, to say nothing of any other wing in the circuit?"

W. Don Harrison

FIVE YEARS DIRECTOR of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh without once seeing the Panthers in their annual football battle with Carnegie Tech is the strange record of W. Don Harrison. He never misses any of the other Panther games, but it seems he just can't make the Pitt-Carnegie number, which he is beginning to think is his particular jinx.

Harrison was appointed athletic director at Pitt before the grid season of 1928, but every year on the date of the Panther-Tartan clash he was either out of the city or too ill to attend. He was all set to break the streak this season when he developed a severe cold and was ordered to bed by his physician, forcing him to be absent for the game today for the fifth time.

IN A LETTER from Houston, Pa., "An Every Day Reader" writes that he agrees schedules should count for something in football ranking, but disagrees that this item entitles a team even as good as Pitt to be classed with Colgate or Brown, elevens not beaten nor tied.

"Only an eleven not beaten nor tied can be considered the best," he adds. "Most coaches consider a tie a loss. Colgate and Brown also have had tough schedules, and ought to be considered above Pitt. Maybe Pitt and Colgate could be brought together in a benefit game.

"COLGATE HAS NOT been scored on," the correspondent continues, "so why shouldn't it be ranked far above Pitt? Since I look for Colgate to take Brown, I see the former as the only team in the East entitled to go to the Rose Tourney. In these records, I'd pick Colgate any day: Colgate won eight, lost none, tied none, scoring 243 points to none for opponents; Pitt, won six, lost none, tied two, scoring 169 points to 25 for opponents." In the making of these records, Colgate played St. Lawrence, Case, Niagara, Lafayette (beaten five times), New York U. (beaten three times), Penn State (beaten five times), Mississippi College and Syracuse (beaten four times). Pitt played Ohio Northern, West Virginia, Duquesne, Army, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Penn and Nebraska.

COMMENTING ON THE reported plan of Donie Bush to move George Grantham back to first base, Joe Birmingham, former Cleveland outfielder and manager, says that if he were handling the Reds he would put Babe Herman on first and keep him there.

Birmingham was discussing the Cincinnati club with Gene McCann, Yankee scout, and during the conversation the name of Leo Durocher was mentioned. "There's the best shortstop in either of the big leagues," declared McCann. "I think so, too," Birmingham agreed.

E. C. DICKSON writes to suggest some names for an all-time all-America team. He mentions in the backfield Thorpe, Mahan, Gipp and Grange, with Heston, Nevers, Harley, Hazel, Killinger, Eckersall, Pfann and Carideo close behind.

Valentine Bialas

At ends, are placed Hardwick and Robeson, ahead of Hinkel, Shevlin and Muller. Henry and Hart are the tackles; Heffelfinger and Hare the guards, with Schwab ranking next, and Schultz is the center, with Herb Stein second. As to the greatest player ever seen on a Pittsburgh field, the opinion is expressed that the award belongs to Henry in the line and to Rodgers, Beck or Killinger in the backfield.

EDDIE WEDGE, of Detroit, has been added as a fifth member of the United States ice speed skating team that will compete against Norway's best in an international series at Oslo, January 28 and 29, preliminary to the world championship meet. The Amateur Skating Union of Norway suggested that the team be increased to five men, the four in best condition at racing time to compete against Norway's pick, and since Wedge was first alternate he automatically became the fifth skater. The others who will represent America are Valentine Bialas, of Utica; Herbert Taylor, of New York; Eddie Schroeder, of Chicago, and Carl Springer, of Brooklyn. A European trip will be no novelty to Bialas, who competed on the 1924 and 1928 Olympic teams.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The students at Perry High School today are celebrating their first city scholastic football championship, achieved yesterday at Peabody High Field when their eleven upset a heralded Westinghouse machine, champion of Section I, 13-6, before a crowd of more than 4,000.

It was an inspired Perry eleven, a team that did not know the meaning of defeat, that emerged from a quagmire in the East End, crowned champion of all city high schools.

FAVORITES OUTPLAYED

The Section II champions, coached by Chester Smith and picked to lose by several touchdowns, took everything the Silver Lakers had to offer for three quarters and then, realizing that the Burton attack wes being stopped, opened up a bewildering offensive in the final period that produced two touchdowns and victory.

Established a prohibitive favorite as a result of its remarkable showing in the Section I race and against powerful non-league opponents, Westinghouse found its match in the fighting Perry grid machine.

The North Siders, after spotting the Silver Lakers to a 6-to-0 advantage early in the second quarter, when Barone, called back from the line to carry the ball, went through center from the one-yard stripe, actually played their Brushton rivals off their feet.

PERRY STARTS DRIVE

The North Siders took things into their own hands after Dalfonso was smeared in attempting to register the extra point, the all-scholastic fullback being smothered before he could try for a placement goal.

Perry gave advance notices of its surprising offensive power in the first quarter when it recovered a fumble by Dalfonso on the Westinghouse 35-yard line.

From this point Perry started its first drive. With Kornick and Nolan lugging the ball, the North Siders advanced to the Westinghouse 12-yard line, where they lost the pigskin when an attempted pass fell into the end zone.

Perry's drive for victory was unleashed in the final quarter. Recovering a Westinghouse fumble in mid-field, the Perry boys marched to the nine-yard line, where they again lost the ball on downs.

MANNING SCORES

This turn in events, however, did not stop Perry, for shortly afterward, following an exchange of punts, Perry recovered another Westinghouse fumble on the latter's 28-yard mark. The march from this point on straight football was not to be denied, Manning carrying the ball across from the one-yard line as the fourth quarter got under way. The attempt to add the extra point hit the cross-bar and the score was tied.

Don McCallum, shifted from guard to end on the Perry eleven, emerged from the battle the hero of the game, this speedy lineman stopping the fleet-footed Westinghouse backs on virtually every attempt they made to advance the ball.

McCallum climaxed his brilliant play late in the fourth quarter by helping to block a Westinghouse punt, which paved the way for the victory. McCallum and Evans smeared the punt and Perry recovered on the Westinghouse 12-yard stripe. Manning passed to Nolan for the touchdown. The thirteenth point was recorded on a pass from Kornick to Nolan.

KORNICK, NOLAN STAR

Sharing honors with McCallum in Perry's victory were Kornick and Nolan, two backfield aces who played their greatest games of the season. Manning's field generalship also left no room for complaint.

Westinghouse's best performers were Dalfonso and McMahon.

The victory marked only the second time Section II has won the city crown in nine years, South Hills being the first to take the title in 1931. Prior to 1931, Section I had won the crown seven straight years.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE SALE OF NEW YORK CITY HALL FOR DEBT—During the incumbency of Mayor Fernando Wood, in 1856, public corruption had reached such a pass that a certain Robert W. Lowber recovered a judgment against the City of New York for $196,000 on a false claim. To satisfy this judgment, the New York City Hall was sold at public auction. The successful bidder, who paid $50,000 for the hall with all of its furnishings and contents, was Daniel F. Tieman. The buyer was elected Mayor the same year, and was reimbursed by the city, which repossessed itself of its property.

DEADLINE NEAR IN CONTEST

Only four more days, including today, remain to enter the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Pop Warner Contest, the prizes for which are 10 sets of two tickets each to the Pitt-Stanford football game at the Stadium next Saturday and six all-America football blankets.

All you have to do is to submit a question in a letter to Warner, in care of the Sports Department of the Sun-Telegraph. Ask him about any football topic of general interest. He will select the 16 that appeal most to him as the prize-winners, and will answer them during his All-America Board of Football-Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Postum radio broadcast over a national hookup from WJAS next Friday night, the eve of his team's battle with Pitt, which he formerly coached, at the Stadium here.

Get in your questions, as many as you wish, but only one in a letter, before the deadline, midnight next Tuesday. Thousands already have entered the contest.

RAIDERS GET ROSE BID

MEMPHIS, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Dr. George B. Cutten, president of Colgate University, said yesterday Colgate has been asked to consider a possible invitation to participate in the annual Rose Bowl football classic at Pasadena.

Dr. Cutten, here to deliver an address, told newspapermen Colgate has been asked by the Rose Bowl committee to say whether the school would accept an invitation should Colgate triumph over Brown. He said:

"We will wait until after the meeting with Brown University Thanksgiving Day. Then we will be able to make a decision."

Dukes, Catholic U. Battle to Tie

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Mud conquered the Duquesne and Catholic University running attacks last night, causing them to battle to a scoreless tie in the latter's homecoming game in Griffith Stadium here.

Rain started falling several hours before the game and the field was a slippery mass that effectively trapped the Notre Dame systems each team employed.

Both elevens had a chance to score in the last quarter on placements within the 15-yard line, but both kicks went wide of the uprights. The Pennsylvanians rolled up nine first downs to five for Catholic University and gained 132 yards from scrimmage as contrasted with 73 for the Cardinals.

Held in their own territory throughout the first half by the kicking of Catholic University's backfield aces, Duquesne came back in the second half to drive down the field for the longest march of the game, only to be stopped on the 14-yard line.

Taking the ball on their own 18-yard line, the Duquesne Night Riders rolled up three first downs with DeLuca ripping through tackle.

The Pittsburgh ace then passed to Nussbaum, who carried the ball to the C. U. 34-yard line. Arthur Strutt was sent in and he crashed through tackle for 14 yards to the 20-yard marker and then added six more. There the Cardinal line held.

Lawrence Sullivan missed the attempted placement.

The Cardinals retaliated with a drive of their own after intercepting a pass on the Duquesne 36-yard line. The march ended, however, on the eight-yard line and Oliver's placement try was wide.

The contest was the fourth to be played between the institutions, the Dukes having won two of the three played previously. Catholic University won last year in Pittsburgh, 20 to 12.

Fairmont Defeats Salem in Final

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—For the first time in history, Fairmont College defeated a Salem College football team yesterday by nosing out the Tigers in a closely fought battle, 6-0. It was the closing game of the year for both teams and the victory gave Fairmont the best season's record it has compiled since 1925.

A 52-yard march produced the only score in the second quarter, when Davis passed over the goal line to Glenn. Salem held the upper hand in first downs, 9 to 5, but offered only one serious scoring threat, which Fairmont checked on its six-yard line in the third quarter.

JACKETS FACE NEW RIVER

Waynesburg risks its unbeaten record today as the Yellow Jackets tackle New River State's powerful Golden Bears in Montgomery, W. Va., in the most important tussle having to do with elevens in the tri-state sector. The game is important in that it matches the class B champions of Western Pennsylvania against one of the three strongest West Virginia elevens.

Despite the fine record of the Jackets, they may be expected to run into plenty of trouble with the powerful Bears, who have been tough to take all fall.

GENEVA FAVORED

Geneva hopes to come back after its defeat at the hands of the Jackets Armistice Day by knocking off Westminster at Beaver Falls. The Titans always give Geneva trouble, and with a strong eleven, have an outside chance of bumping Harpster's Covenanters.

Grove City and Thiel meet in their annual clash at Grove City with the outcome regarded as a tossup. Neither have accomplished anything much this fall.

Allegheny follows Waynesburg's lead into West Virginia and meets Bethany at Bethany. Slippery Rock goes East for a clash with Haven and Indiana and Shippensburg battle at Shippensburg.

W.-J. IN WEST

Wash-Jeff is in the mid-West, taking on Marquette at Milwaukee. West Virginia and Davis-Elkins resume relations in Morgantown, where Cam Henderson's Scarlet Hurricane is expected to give the fast-stepping Mountaineers a real ball game.

West Liberty winds up its season by meeting Cedarville at Wheeling.

eled in recent years, and a Carnegie triumph or tie today hardly will shake the foundations of the game.

Today is Homecoming Day for the Plaid and the old grads of Carnegie will be back hoping to see their Tartans annex their fifth triumph of the series. Pitt has won 14 of the 18 games played to date. There have been no ties.

EXPECT 20,000 CROWD

The rain of yesterday afternoon and last night and early this morning did the game little good, either from the standpoint of drawing a crowd or providing a dry field. A crowd of 20,000 will be considered good. A wet and soggy turf will handicap both elevens.

For the very reason they are given but slight chance of beating the strong eleven developed by Dr. Jock Sutherland this fall, the Tartans find themselves in a fine spot, practically the same spot that Pitt was in against Notre Dame. The Panthers came through nobly, and Carnegie will concede Pitt nothing when it comes to fight and spirit.

Carnegie expects to campaign minus the services of Bill Spisak, regular left halfback. In his place, the coaches have placed Tom Coulter, who only turned out for football this fall, and who lacks, and in a large way, experience. He's big and fast, but the seasoning isn't there.

DAILEY IN ACTION

Four Pitt shock troopers, Miller Mungas, Francis Seigel, Johnny Meredith and Capt. Paul Reider, have been nominated for starting jobs following the demotion this week of a quartet of varsity performers, Hogan, Sebastian, Onder and Cuba. Cuba was set down more for the purpose of resting the big New Castle lad than any other, but the others failed to play the sort of ball Coach Sutherland expected of them against Nebraska last week.

Ted Dailey, who was out of action against the Cornhuskers with an injured back, is ready for duty again and will start. In the event he is unable to hold up, big Harvey Rooker, who played every minute of the scoreless tie last week, will take his place.

Walton will be at right tackle, beside Muggsy Skladany and Doc Hartwig will go at left guard; Tormey will be at center.

Replacing Hogan will be Mungas, who started his first college game, and started it well, against Notre Dame. Meredith will be at left tackle, Seigel at right guard and Capt. Reider back at right halfback.

HELLER BIG STAR

Warren Heller, Pitt's candidate for all-America honors, possibly the best back in the East, and Izzy Weinstock, the sophomore fullbacker, complete the backfield alignment.

On the line, where the Skibos are the strongest, Red Stewart and Tony Ostrosky are set for the terminals, with Plummer and Croft at the tackles; Co-Capt. Hooks Sample and Bunny Burzio at the guards, and Red Jones at center. Forsman may get the call over Plummer.

Pitt has played a far more difficult schedule than has the Plaid. The Panthers have defeated Army, Notre Dame, Penn, Duquesne, West Virginia and Ohio Northern, and tied Ohio State and Nebraska. Tech has been held even by Wash-Jeff and Temple, beaten Xavier, Geneva and Western Reserve, and was soundly trounced by Notre Dame.

The Panthers, too, are better off for reserves. The presence on the bench of the four demoted varsity men, along with John Love, Heinie Weisenbaugh, Rocco Cutri, George Shotwell, Wojcihovski, Luch, Brown, O'Dell, Ormiston and others, gives the Blue and Gold a decided edge in replacement strength.

In the event the Tech coaches decide at the last minute to hold Coulter on the bench, either Art Carlson, a sophomore, or John Sayles, will start in his place.

SAVOLDI GETS DRAW

CLEVELAND, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Joe Savoldi, 200, former Notre Dame fullback, and George Zaharas, 214, Greece, tugged and grappled to a one-hour deadlock in the main bout of a wrestling show last night.

LOCAL COLLEGIANS SEEK BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL JOBS

TIMMY LAWRY GETS OFFER FROM YANKS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Failure of the local colleges to sponsor baseball in their sport programs has not dulled the fervor of the students for the diamond game. A checkup today revealed that half a dozen district collegians have made definite moves looking toward major league berths.

Tim Lawry

The list sparkles with names which have shed a lustre on the University of Pittsburgh athletic fields. It follows:

Timmy Lawry, Pitt basketball star, who is still enrolled in the school. Lawry, a crack shortstop, has just received a tentative offer from the New York Americans. Lawry starred for the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. team both in the field and at bat. He cracked out 19 homers and batted .395.

Arthur Garbark, a star of the Pitt Freshman team of several years back. Art left school before graduation and entered professional baseball. He starred for the Muskogee club of the Western Association this year. He is a third baseman.

BROTHERS IN SPORT

Bob Garback, crack catcher and baseball property of the Cleveland Indians. Arthur's younger brother is taking some extra collegiate work at Allegheny College, Meadville, where he has been a brilliant grid and floor performer. At the conclusion of the college term of this year he was farmed by the Cleveland club to the Allentown club, of the Eastern League. When the Eastern League disbanded, Bob was transferred to the Williamsport club of the N. Y. P. League. He has been recalled by Cleveland. The clever youngster also is the assistant coach of the Allegheny College football squad.

Paul Reider, captain of the Pitt football team. A Pittsburgh Pirate contract awaits the fleet New Castle boy when he finishes his college work next June. Paul is a clever second baseman. He worked out with the Pirates on several occasions last summer and was strongly urged by many veterans to enter professional baseball.

GRID STARS LIKE BASEBALL

Mike Sebastian, Pitt halfback. The Pirates' owners also are interested in the strong-running halfback, but nothing about baseball will be said to Mike until he finishes his school work. He has another year to complete before he graduates. Sebastian is a left-handed outfielder, and he is left-handed all the way. He can sock the ball, and uses his great speed with effect on the basepaths.

George Dashbach, Villanova football and baseball star, who has decided to follow baseball as a profession. He is a catcher. Not yet of age, Dashbach made a fine impression on Manager George Gibson, of the Pirates, as he spent a month in catching in the Bucco batting practice of this year. The Pittsburgh scouts expect to place George with a fast minor league club. He resides in Oakland.

KORNICK, HALFBACK, RETURNS WESTINGHOUSE PUNT IN 13-6 VICTORY

Perry High School upset the dope in classic fashion when it came from behind to score two touchdowns and beat out Westinghouse High School for the City League scholastic football title at Peabody field yesterday. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows a Perry star in action.

BEARS CERTAIN TO TROUBLE CARDS - POP

By GLENN S. (POP) WARNER,
Member, All-American Board of Football
(Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.)

Quite a number of teams will not play this weekend because they are to play on Thanksgiving Day and are resting up for important battles on that day.

The so-called "Big Game" between California and Stanford is the most important of this week's contests in the Far West. While neither team has a very impressive record, both teams are about average representatives of their institutions and both team play good football. On their records California looks to have the best team, and a victory for the Bears would not be surprising. Stanford has had a rather hard-luck season, and to top off the Cardinals' misfortunes the squad was hit this week by the flu epidemic which has been sweeping the Stanford campus. Several members of the squad are in the hospital. This cannot do other than weaken Stanford's chances in this most important contest.

SPECIALIZE IN POWER

The Bears are a team which specializes in power. They have the men to make a power attack go. Their line is big and powerful, and their backs are of the hard-driving type best suited for that style of game. In addition to their powerful running plays they have a very good passing attack and they are exceptionally well versed in the kicking game. This makes a tough combination to beat.

It is my opinion that Stanford could get nowhere against the physically stronger California team by using simple power plays. The Redshirts' only chance seems to be to make up in speed and deception what they lack in power. California unquestionably has the stronger line, but I believe that Stanford has the speedier and more clever backfield, although probably Schaldach, of California, is the best back on either team.

OREGON STATE DANGEROUS

Another Pacific Coast team will tackle Fordham tomorrow in New York, and it is hoped out here that Oregon State will have better success than did the St. Mary's boys. Coach Schissler's teams have been in the habit of performing better in their intersectional games than they have in their Conference contests, and I look for them to give the Rams a lot of trouble.

Where's That Pitt Punch?

COACH BOB WADDELL, OF CARNEGIE TECH, CAN SEE IT

And he doesn't need glasses, either. In fact, the Tartan mentor knows his grid warriors have a lot to stop in the annual city championship game with Pitt at the Stadium this afternoon, despite the Panthers' two scoreless ties with Ohio State and Nebraska, for he can't forget those Pitt wins aganst Notre Dame and Army. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Jack King, of Little Rock, Ark., halted the winning streak of Ted Yarosz, Monaca welterweight, in the latter's sixtieth professional bout at the Arena, on the North Side, last night, but it didn't count.

It didn't count because the judges disagreed and the referee's vote decided the issue in favor of Yarosz. Judge Frank Brown scored for King and Judge Freddie Lux and Referee Red Robinson for Yarosz.

In this scribe's opinion, the fight wasn't even close. King got himself off to a big lead and coasted on it through the last four rounds, with the exception of the ninth, in which he put real steam behind his punches.

Yarosz starting off as if he had too wholesome a respect for the conqueror of Billy Holt, Tiger Joe Randall and Jimmy Belmont in bouts here, appeared to be all at sea and won himself a shade in only the second round of the first six, and then when, in a desperate exchange, he managed to clip his man with a right to the jaw that sent the latter back off balance for no count.

KING DOMINATES FIGHT

Teddy's mouth was cut and bleeding from the first round on and he retreated and covered and missed more than in any other bout in which he has appeared here. He started almost every round by rushing from his corner and finished each with a rally, after being stalked from rope to rope by the crowding, forcing King, who effectively mixed left hooks to the body and head and crossed rights to the jaw.

By the time the seventh round rolled around, Teddy was so far behind that he was fighting a hopeless cause and only a miracle could save his record of no defeats. It developed in the form of the kicked-around decision. King returned the partial knockdown of the second round when he dropped Ted momentarily as they traded rights at the bell starting the sixth round.

King slowed down and appeared to be satisfied to let Yarosz set the pace through the seventh and eighth rounds, in which no great damage was done. Then he nailed Ted with a right to jaw as the latter rushed from his corner to start the ninth, and put his old power back into his punches to tame down Yarosz throughout the session. With the fight well in hand, he permitted Yarosz to do the forcing in the final round. Imagine his embarrassment, then, to discover that officially he had failed to win over the local man.

SEASON'S BIGGEST CROWD

Yarosz tried hard to win the fight on his merits, and in his eagerness often transgressed the rules, hitting on the breaks and cuffing and striking after the bell, for which he was warned. However, he was in against a straight-standing, fast-moving, quick-thinking opponent, who packed a kick in both fists and refused to become flustered by Ted's awkwardly clever style.

The fight drew the largest crowd of the season at the Arena, in the expectation of seeing Yarosz really tested, and the fans got what they came for. It was too bad the decision was not in keeping with the caliber of the fight.

So far as that goes, the decision in the six-round semi-final, between Carl Montebano, of Braddock, and Red Bush, of Cumberland, middleweights, was even more sour. Bush won every round and floored his man for no count in the opening frame, but lost Referee Jack Henderson's decision after the judges had disagreed, with Lux voting for Bush and Brown for Montebano. Maybe the spectators were wrong and this bout was part of the Pitt-Tech cross-country run of yesterday. If it was, then Montebano won it handily, for he was on the run throughout. If it was a fight, he wasn't even in it. It was the first time in three starts here Bush had failed to stop his man.

CLEMENTS WINNER

Jerry Clements, lightweight, of Jeannette, won all of the way over Fritzie Zivic, of Lawrenceville, in the second bout, outgeneraling and outpunching the youngest of the fighting brothers. Max Elling, Hill welterweight, tired after a good start and lost the decision to General Burr, of Aliquippa, in the opener.

Yarosz weighed 150¾ pounds and King 147¼ in the main bout.

It was announced Tony Herrera and Frankie Goosby will be principals in two 10-round bouts at the Arena next Friday night.

ELI, CRIMSON TEAMS SET

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The football stalwarts of Yale and Harvard come to grips today in a contest rich with tradition. Victory for either eleven will mean the difference between a dismal and a satisfactory season.

As the elevens, rated about equal by the experts, line up in the Bowl for their fifty-first annual clash, they will be carrying on a football rivalry that began in 1875.

There will be no championship at stake. Neither team has displayed the prowess that in other years has made the elevens of there two ancient rivals the cynosure of the football world. But so steeped in tradition is that rivalry that between 60,000 to 65,000 fans, the largest crowd of the season, are expected.

Heartened by its victory over a strong Holy Cross eleven after being beaten by Brown and Army, the Crimson players will have much at stake. Victory for them will wipe off much of the stigma of a rather hapless season. It will mean sweet revenge too for the 3-to-0 defeat they suffered in last year's contest when the irrepressible Albie Booth booted the ball over the crossbar in the closing minutes of play for Yale's margin of victory.

Of the 50 games played by these rivals, Yale has won 28, Harvard 16, and six ended in ties. The lineups:

Yale		Harvard
O'Connell	L. E.	Narro
Wilbur	L. T.	Ayers
Nelson	L. G.	Esterly
Copeland	C.	Halloweli
Converse	R. G.	Gundlach
Curtin	R. T.	Bancroft
Parker	R. E.	Hageman
Sullivan	Q.	Wells
Lassiter	L. H.	Crickard
Crowley	R. H.	Barrett
Levering	F. B.	Dean

Referee, E. J. O'Brien, Tufts; umpire, J. P. Egan, Duquesne; linesman, T. J. McCabe, Holy Cross; field judge, A. W. Palmer, Colby.

Play Against Panthers Wins Sauer Rating

By CHRISTY WALSH,
Member All-America Board of Football.
(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

The process of elimination is on in earnest, with many early season candidates for all-America honors falling by the wayside. Injuries have destroyed the hopes of some individual stars, while, in other cases, September heroes have been supplanted by November substitutes. The following players have receivec all-America ratings this week, entitling them to cards of merit, issued by the All-America Board of Football, seven new names appearing in this week's ratings.

Sauer, Nebraska—Last Saturday, at Lincoln, this powerful fullback ran 23 times against undefeated Pitt, gaining 121 yards, in a scoreless tie. Ralph Wagner, Omaha Bee News, rates Sauer All-America because he made more yardage than Heller, Sebastian and Weinstock, of Pittsburgh, combined.

All America Ratings

Hardy, Harvard—His spirited play against Holy Cross was an inspiration to the entire Harvard team in a hard-earned victory.

Melinkovich, Notre Dame—Cutting through the very heart of the entire Northwestern team, this big fullback ran the opening kickoff 98 yards for a touchdown, giving Notre Dame a great psychological advantage over a determined foe.

WILDER COLUMBIA STAR

Wilder, Columbia—For three-quarters of the game, the Columbia line clearly outplayed Brown, and Wilder was the principal factor. Sid Mercer, New York American, rates Wilder as the best defensive player of the game and gives him personal credit for holding unbeaten Brown to a one-point victory.

Wilbur, Yale—Coach Fritz Crisler, of Princeton, rates Capt. Wilbur All-America and calls his leadership the chief obstacle in Princeton's path to victory. Four times, with Princeton five yards from a touchdown, this aggressive tackle rallied his teammates to a stubborn and successful defense of the Yale goal.

Newman, Michigan—This consistent star scored 12 points against Chicago and had his best afternoon of the season. Returning a punt in the first quarter, he raced 75 yards through a scattered field for a touchdown. In the final quarter, halted in an effort to pass, the versatile quarterback skirted the flanks for 29 yards and another score.

CHASE GREAT QUARTER

Chase, Brown—Here is a fine kicker, a smart director of tactics and acclaimed one of the best quarterbacks of the season. Against Columbia, Chase played championship football and topped off his performance with a kick that scored the winning point.

Rayburn, Tennessee—This tall, rangy end can box a tackle and break up interference with the best of them and is one of the best pass receivers in the South, according to Bill Alexander, member All-America Board of Football. His tackling against Vanderbilt was an important factor in a hard-fought, scoreless tie.

Fairman, Princeton—Great defensive play of this Tiger end prevented Lassiter and the Yale offense from scoring many long gains. He was on his toes from whistle to whistle. Making a neat catch, he carried the pass that scored for Princeton and twice batted down Yale passes in the shadow of the goal.

McGUIRE ON RAMPAGE

McGuire, Wisconsin—With the score securely tied, this scampering star beat Minnesota with a sensational touchdown in the last 30 seconds of play. Previous to that, McGuire had scored two touchdowns, making one in an 87-yard sprint on the first kickoff of the game. He scored 18 points against the rugged Gophers and rates All-America with special mention.

STOWE AND ROX GAME OFF

The Stowe Township-McKees Rocks scholastic football game scheduled at Stowe this afternoon was postponed this morning until next Tuesday.

Two Class AA Conference battles head a light scholastic card in Western Pennsylvania. Washington plays at Wilkinsburg and Clairton goes to New Kensington.

Out at Homestead Field, Homestead and Munhall stage their annual duel with both teams on edge for the conflict.

FREEDOM FACES TEST

The Freedom High School eleven, setting the pace in the class B race, stakes its hopes for the championship on the outcome of its battle with East Pittsburgh at East Pittsburgh today. East Pittsburgh shows only one defeat, the Coleman Shamrocks losing to Springdale, also a contender, 7-6.

Ambridge, leading the way in class A, concludes its campaign by clashing with Ellwood City at Ambridge. A victory over Ellwood City will give Rubenstein's eleven eight straight triumphs over class A opponents.

Glassport plays at Donora, West Newton at Youngwood, Monaca at Midland, Scottdale at Latrobe, Har-Brack at Tarentum, Redstone at Uniontown, Canonsburg at Monongahela and Ford City at Leechburg in other important games.

RANKIN WINS

In games of secondary importance to the Perry-Westinghouse City League championship tilt yesterday, Rankin won over Elizabeth, 19 to 6; Connellsville walloped South Union, 38 to 0; Springdale defeated Mars, 18-0; Etna trimmed Aspinwall, 19-7; Millvale nosed out Evans City, 7-0; Brownsville downed South Brownsville, 12-0, and Burgettstown defeated Centerville, 6-0, in district contests.

In frays involving elevens from out of the Pittsburgh district, East Liverpool won over Holy Name, of Cleveland, 16-2; East Brady took Parker, 7-0; Karns City downed Slippery Rock, 13-12, and Youngstown Memorial defeated Lowellville, 19-0.

Three Soccer Frays On Card Today

Three games will be played in the Central Soccer League this afternoon. The feature game will be staged at Mt. Lebanon, with the German Sport Club meeting the Firemen.

At Leslie Park, Ambridge, will be the attraction, and at Swissvale, McKeesport, will tackle Westinghouse.

IRISH FAVORED OVER SAILORS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Two husky squads of football warriors representing Notre Dame and the Navy meet in their annual clash here today.

The two teams, staging the first "big time" football game ever played in Cleveland, may draw a season's record crowd to the Municipal Stadium if the weatherman's prediction of snow turns out to be unfounded. Approximately 65,000 reservations have already been sold and 10,000 to 15,000 more customers are expected providing the weather is not too severe.

Notre Dame, victorious five times this year and trampled by only Pittsburgh, is again a big favorite to win.

CURTAIN FALLS IN BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The Big Ten football curtain falls today with the youngest master mind of the Conference fighting for the undisputed championship, and the grand patriarch of them all in a sad valedictory.

Up in the northland of Minneapolis, Coach Harry Kipke will send his undefeated Michigan eleven against Minnesota, the last barrier between the Wolverines and the prized crown. On Chicago's midway, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg will send his forty-first and last Maroon team against the bristling Badgers from Wisconsin. Three other Conference games, involving Iowa at Northwestern, Ohio State at Illinois, and Indiana at Purdue, are on the final card, but paled into insignificance as compared with Michigan's title drive at Stagg's last stand.

Michigan was expected to pass its way to victory over the physically shattered Gophers, but a great battle was expected from start to finish. Possessing probably a stronger running attack, the Gophers were ready to stage the fight of their football lives to beat the Wolverines out of the championship and hand it to Purdue, which was expected to defeat its traditional rival, Indiana.

NEW TARTAN HOPE

HALFBACK COULTER

Tom Coulter, Carnegie Tech track star who will start against Pitt at the Stadium today in what is only the second game of his football career. He broke in as a sub for the injured Bill Spisak against Xavier at Cincinnati last Saturday and scored a touchdown.

TOM COULTER, AS HURDLER FOR TECH AND CANADA

Coulter is better known as a hurdler and sprinter. He represented Canada in the Olympic Games hurdles events in California this year. Now he's "gone football" in his senior year and makes his local debut in a tough spot—against the Tartans' chief rival, Pitt. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Panther Harriers Win Over Tartans

The University of Pittsburgh varsity and freshman cross-country team defeated the Carnegie Tech varsity and plebe harriers in the annual race over the Schenley Park course yesterday. The Pitt varsity won, 15 to 40, and the Panther Cubs triumphed, 18 to 37.

Bill Lawrence finished first in the varsity race in 28 minutes 3 seconds. Grot and Musico ran a dead heat in the freshman race.

W. Va. Cards W. & L. For 1933 Opener

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 19.—West Virginia University will open its 1933 football schedule next fall against Washington and Lee at Charleston on September 23, H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics, said here today.

Some weeks ago he made public the fact that Duquesne would be played in Pittsburgh on September 29 and the University of Pittsburgh here on October 7—the same relative dates on which the teams were met this year.

Fans who last week sat through the Generals-Mountaineer combat at Charleston played in snow and freezing cold weather will welcome the announcement of the early date for the annual fracas with Wash-Lee.

TRIO OF LOCAL BOXERS WIN

CLEVELAND, Nov. 19.—Pittsburgh amateur boxers invaded this city last night and came out on the short end, winning only three of the eight bouts on the inter-city program. One Smoky City lad was returned victor by a knockout and another lost in the same manner.

William Schwerin, Pittsburgh middleweight, knocked out Leo Ambrose, of Cleveland, after 45 seconds of the first round had elapsed. Tarzan McGivern, also of Pittsburgh, defeated George Baratko, local sensation, his first defeat in 18 amateur battles in a fast welterweight bout. George Luppinacci, Pittsburgh lightheavyweight, won over Joe Malinky for the other Pittsburgh victory.

In other bouts, Eddie Katkisk, Pittsburgh featherweight, lost to Tommy Hutson; Mike Barto, Pittsburgh, was outpointed by Ted Smith; Frank Schrider lost on a technical knockout to Ted Kara and Johnny Ochs lost to Jake Allen in a close heavyweight slugfest.

JADICK VICTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Johnny Jadick, 126¾, of Philadelphia, won by a technical knockout over Lew Raymond, 143¾, of Baltimore, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round feature bout here last night. Jadick sent both Raymond's eyes at the start of the fifth and after the game the physician entered to permit him to continue. He let the fifth Raymond had been piling up a lively battle.

Vines Adds to List Of Tennis Laurels

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Ellsworth Vines, United States tennis ace, captured the singles title in the final of the New South Wales championships today by defeating his countryman Wilmer Allison, 4-6, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5.

In the doubles final, Allison and John Van Ryn defeated Vines and Keith Gledhill, 7-5, 10-8, 6-4.

The tournament developed into an intra-American affair after the American stars defeated Australia's crack players in earlier rounds.

French Officers Win in Show

TORONTO, Ontario, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The French army team of Capt. Clave, Lieut. Cavaille and Lieut. Tillere won the international army officers' event at the Royal Horse Show last night. The Irish Free State carried off second and third places, with the United States fourth and Canada fifth and last.

The event was run over a special course, with three mounts traveling abreast. The French officers completed the course with only a half fault.

Fight Results

At Arena, North Side—Ted Yarosz won referee's decision over Jack King, 10 rounds; Carl Montebano won referee's decision over Red Bush, 6 rounds; Jerry Clements defeated Fritzie Zivic, 6 rounds; General Burr defeated Max Elling, 6 rounds.

At New York—Primo Carnera won by a technical knockout over Jose Santa, 6 rounds; Tony Rocco defeated Arthur Huttick, 6 rounds; Walter Cobb defeated Jack Dorval, 6 rounds; Bob Olin defeated Tommy Walsh, 6 rounds; Charley Massare defeated uanito Olagibbel, 6 rounds; Andy Mitchell won by a technical knockout over Yale Okun, 4 rounds.

People Should Try to Solve Their Own Problems

Shall Margot "keep on going with Ben" because she's sorry for him—

Even though she loves another man, and doesn't ever expect to marry Ben?

How come? Well, she "just drifted" into it, and now she doesn't know what to do.

Ridiculous? Of course it's ridiculous. But aren't we all a little ridiculous about something, somewhere in our lives? Haven't you—haven't I—"just drifted" into cussed situations, because we were too lazy or cowardly or fuzzy-minded to make a definite plan, and then gone almost crazy worrying over how to get out?

Sure we have! And how! So, before we throw stones at Margot, let's investigate our own records.

"Dear Sally Martin—

"Being very much in distress, I thought it best to have your decision. Please solve this mystery for me.

"I met a man some years back to whom I took a sort of fancy. I just drifted along, going out with him, and sort of got to liking his company. I just drifted along, devoting most of my time to him, but I really did not love him. If I had, I would have married him.

"Not long ago I met another young man, whom I liked very much, and as time went on I grew to love him. He is really everything to me. Life without him seems very dull, and I am quiet sure that I mean the same to him, and that he loves me dearly.

"Now I am undecided about what to do.

CAN NOT DECIDE

"If I keep going along with Ben, the first young man, I am quite sure that I will never marry him; and if I marry this second one, whom I love, I know I will be happy. But to make myself happy, perhaps I will have to make Ben unhappy; or he might do something desperate, either to me or to himself, perhaps.

"What would you do in a case like this? Do you think I would be doing an injustice to Ben if I told him the truth about being very much in love with the other one? Should I tell him or should I just sacrifice my happiness and keep on going with him as I have been, although I know I will never be happy without the one I love?

"I must soon decide, and I don't know what to do. Please help me out, as I am leaving this mystery entirely to you to solve. "MARGOT."

So you're leaving your "mystery" entirely to me to solve, eh? And you wonder how it all happened?

That's how it happened, sister. Because you've always expected other people to solve things for you. All your life you've been "just drifting," without a plan in your head, letting things "just happen," and then hoping that something else would happen to relieve you of the consequences.

MAKE OWN PLANS

And what's the answer? The answer is, your life's a mess. And your life will always be a mess until you learn to boss your own affairs and make your own plans.

Even if you should rid yourself of Young Man Number One and marry Young Man Number Two, you would still be heading into trouble. For the trouble is in yourself; in your own spinelessness.

Snap out of it! Stop being a jellyfish! Grow a backbone and some self-respect. Begin to do something with your life before it is too late.

Break with this man. Squawk? Sure he'll squawk! But if you don't love him he hasn't any claim on your life, and no amount of devotion on his part will give him a claim. And if you really want to be kind to him you'll be doing him a real service by setting him free from a companionship that is only wasting both your lives.

Break with this man, and don't tie up with another man until you've made a woman of yourself and know what you really want. Otherwise you'll be a pest to yourself and everyone else all your life.

"MY GIRL"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"My Girl!" Pleasant words, sung in songs, chanted in poetry, painted in pictures, sketched in funny and serious black-and-white, whistled by big boy and little, going down the street of an autumn evening.

My Girl! Words of many meanings. The little girl who goes to meet her father down the shaded suburban street is indeed Dad's best girl. The mother's nose was out of joint long ago. And mother has to be understanding, and very clever to keep a sweetheart's place in the heart of a father who has a little daughter.

Many a man, until he dies, counts his Mother as his "girl." The first, the tenderly loved, the undying, long-after she is gone, GIRL of his heart. A loving-hearted man can see his mother, in her wrinkled face, as she was when when she was as young as the girls are whom he admires.

Ten-Year-Old has a sweetheart sometimes, secretly, and her name, if she is clever, and changes her dresses often, and they are pretty, is—TEACHER.

Grandfather has a girl—oh, but she's young and tiny. Not one year yet in this world—but so fascinating. So flirtatious. So charming. So irresistible. That Grandfather has lost a heart he thought sleeping.

There's a lone man who has neither girl, nor girl-child, nor mother. I heard him one day call a kind, noble-faced dog named "Sally"—"My Girl."

There are plenty of "girls" besides that one, with shining hair and the latest frock that we all know.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married very soon and there are a few questions in my mind on which I would appreciate your help.

1—In the case of a double-ring ceremony, who purchases the rings?

2—My father is dead. I have a brother 24 years old and my mother is living. Would it be my mother or my brother's place to give the bride away?

3—The wedding is to take place in church at approximately 3 o'clock in the afternoon. In this case how do the bridegroom, best man and bridesmaids dress . . . formal or informal? I am quite unfamiliar with the requirements for formal dress, and shall appreciate your advice on this.

M.

1—For the double ring service, the groom buys the bride's ring, of course, and the bride buys the ring that she is to give to her groom.

2—It would be in excellent taste and form for you to invite your brother to present you in marriage.

3—All of the details and plans for your wedding take form, as to the degree of their formality, by your decision as to whether or not you will wear formal attire. That is, the traditional white wedding dress and bridal veil. If you decide to wear this . . . and this is appropriate for the 3 o'clock wedding, of course, then you have stamped your wedding as "formal." And all other details must be formal. That is, the clothes of the groom and his attendants must be formal. For a 3 o'clock wedding, of course, they would be formal day clothes, cutaway coat and dark striped trousers.

Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received a wedding announcement from a school friend who does not correspond with me. We exchange Christmas cards—that is all.

Is it necessary to acknowledge the announcement? How? Is it necessary to send a present?

We have grown apart and I do not have the feeling that I would ever care to send her a present. If she cannot write to me, why should I consider her a friend? T.

Strictly speaking, it isn't necessary to acknowledge a wedding announcement, but usually we do feel inclined to write a note of good wishes. If I were you, I'd do this. It's a polite thing to do, and it does graciously acknowledge the fact that the girl still holds you in her thoughts. It's such a little trouble, and it's so indicative of our mannerliness.

But it isn't at all necessary for you to send a wedding present.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Squeeze End-Play

The methods by which experts make their doubtful games are extremely interesting, whether the outcome of the hand depends upon a squeeze, an end-play or a coup. The hand below, played by M. M. Phillips, of Melbourne, Australia, is an interesting example of the gradual development of an end-play position, with the possibility of a brilliant answer by the defense.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North: ♠92 ♡KQ876 ◇65 ♣8653
West: ♠A1087 ♡54 ◇A107 ♣10974
East: ♠653 ♡AJ32 ◇Q932 ♣J2
South: ♠KQJ4 ♡109 ◇KJ84 ♣AKQ

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

In the play, a low spade was opened, so that South started fortunately by making Dummy's 9. He used this entry into the Dummy to lead a diamond, on which he finessed the Knave. West winning with the Ace. It was apparent, of course, that West could do no good with the spade suit, and, in fact, his choice of that suit as an Opening lead was bad, so now he shifted to clubs. East played the Knave, and South won with the King. A heart was then led, and East won with the Ace. South decided that East probably held the heart Knave, as otherwise he would have held up the Ace if he did not have any stopper in the suit. East returned a spade, and West won the trick with the Ace.

At this point West could have defeated the contract by another heart lead, but could not be greatly blamed for another lead of clubs instead. The club Queen might have been in East's hand. This was the last opportunity for successful defense, as South was now able to squeeze important cards from East's hand. The diamond Queen was marked as lying there. There was also a chance of an even break in clubs, but this failed. South, however, led his last winning club and two rounds of spades. At the ninth trick, East held hearts Knave-3 and diamonds Queen-9-3. Naturally, he considered that he should retain guards in both suits. South then led the diamond King, and when East played the 9, he put him in with the Queen. East then had to lead up to the King-8 of hearts, and although South's 9 blocked the suit, the diamond 8 was a winner. If East had risen to the emergency and dropped the diamond Queen on South's King, he would have saved the game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North and South have a part-score of 30. South opens the bidding with a Forcing bid of two clubs, North responds with two spades, and South bids two no-trump. This, combined with part-score, gives game. Is North obliged to keep the bidding open further if he has no extra values?

Answer: No; game has been reached.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Carolyn Is Not Brixton's Daughter, Dicky Says

"That must be from Hugh," I exclaimed, as Dr. Barnes said that here was a telegram for me.

"Unless you have other boy—" Dicky began in an ironical drawl, and then stopped, with the realization that the head of Whitney Hall could hear everything he said.

"We're expecting that wire," he said, "and it probably is important."

"It was telephoned," Dr. Barnes said, "and I wrote it down."

"Lillian and Harry," I said to Dicky in a low voice, determined that Lillian should have no further cause to suspect that I was keeping anything from her.

"Right you are!" Dicky stepped to the door of the room that Mrs. Barnes had given to the Underwoods and tapped lightly. Harry opened the door instantly, and Lillian, springing up from the couch, was beside him before Dicky had told them of the telegram.

"Hurry!" Lillian urged, and we all went swiftly into the Barnes livingroom.

"Shall I read it?" Dr. Barnes asked. "I wrote it down hurriedly, and——"

"Please!" Lillian interposed quickly, and evidently sensing her terrfied impatience, he began at once.

"Mrs. Richard Graham, care Whitney Hall, Sackettsville, New Jersey," he read. "Wire received. Starting at once. Lee remaining here; close watch. To the best of my knowledge our friend ill in hotel room; not left it two days. Signed, H. G."

Dr. Barnes laid the telegram down, and Lillian caught her breath.

EXPLAINS SUSPICIONS

"I don't know whether to be relieved or not," she said. "If Owen is sick in Philadelphia he can't have anything to do with this."

"He could instigate it," Harry Underwood interposed quickly. Then, as a puzzled look came into Dr. Barnes' face, he rose abruptly.

"We're not being fair in keeping Dr. Barnes ignorant of our suspicions, fantastic as they are," he said. "But I am sure my wife feels as unequal as I do to retailing them. Dearest, won't you let me take you back to the room while Madge and Dicky tell Dr. Barnes and his wife what they ought to know before the Brixtons arrive? They will call you, the instant anything new happens."

"I promise you that, Lillian," I said earnestly, and, nodding, she turned away with her husband and went out of the room.

"You tell them, Madge," Dicky said as soon as the door had closed behind them. In as few words as possible I sketched what we knew of the early history of Sam Brixton, when he was associated in business with Tom Morton, Marion's father, also of Lillian's early unhappy life, and of her long separation from her child because of Morton's vindictiveness.

Then I spanned the years to the unexpected visit of the Brixtons and Charles Owen, and their attempt to have Lillian sign a document ostensibly restoring property to Marion. I told them also of Marion's lock-box, with its mysterious contents, and of the attempts to steal it, including the pretended attack upon the bank. Then I finally told them of our present fear that Charles Owen, failing in his project of marrying Marion, had taken this means to get possession of the box.

A SURPRISE

When I finished, the faces of Dr. Barnes and his wife held such bewilderment, tinged with incredulity, that Dicky spoke quickly.

"I know all this sounds like the imagination of an insane person, yet I assure you that we have reason for our suspicions of Owen."

"But you would have us believe that the Brixtons are conniving at the kidnaping of their own daughter!" Dr. Barnes exclaimed.

"Mrs. Brixton, of course, knows nothing," Dicky said, "and personally I believe this is Owen's own scheme, if indeed it turns out that he has anything to do with it. I believe Sam Brixton, who adores his wife, would balk at any harm—even fright—coming to Carolyn, who is known as his daughter."

"She is not, then, his own daughter?" Mrs. Barnes asked in surprise.

"No. He married her mother when Carolyn and her brother were tiny children. They both adore him."

"And the Brixtons will be here very soon," Dr. Barnes said, glancing first at a mantel clock, and then at his wife. It was a puzzled, almost appealing look.

"Of course, and we must forget everything we have heard," she said briskly. "Treat them exactly as if we never had heard it. You agree with me, don't you, Mrs. Graham?"

"Oh, surely!" I said quickly, and Dicky nodded assent.

"But I do hope Major Grantland arrives first," he said. "I sure crave speech with that lad. He has his faults, but he's a good side-kick in a jam like this."

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

The tailored sailor is in great demand for the daytime hat. A smart afternoon model is of honey colored satin, banded with seal brown cire satin and finished with a brown veil. It has the popular low, shallow crown and a slightly undulating brim.

Contrasts call in the newest evening frocks. One of the very newest models is a slender design in creamy beige semi-sheer material. It has panels, carried over the shoulder to fall in loose trains at the back. These panels are done in a rich dark red brown, a color that both blends and contrasts with the beige.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglect of Goiter May Lead to Operation

Within the past decade tremendous strides have been made in the study of goiter. At one time goiter was regarded as a fatal ailment and little was known concerning a cure; then came discovery of the value of iodine in the drinking water as a means of combating goiter. Although great benefit has been derived from this simple remedy, harm has been done by unwise and unscientific self-medication. Not every goiter is caused by a deficiency of iodine in the body, and in that case the drug may work damage. These cases require careful and continued medical attention.

Dr. Copeland

Goiter is a common disorder in Switzerland, where all the water lacks iodine. In this country it is met in the Great Lakes region, where there is little iodine. This deficiency has been overcome by adding a certain amount of iodine to the water reservoirs in districts where goiter is prevalent, and this is done under the supervision of health authorities.

Goiter is really an enlargement of the thyroid gland of the neck. It may be traced to other conditions than lack of iodine. For example, an inflammation of the thyroid may cause increase in its tissues.

This form of goiter differs from that caused by lack of iodine. It is met in childhood, but is most common in persons beyond 40 years of age. The treatment varies, depending upon the cause. Operation may be necessary, but this need not cause undue alarm, for when performed by a competent surgeon it is a simple and successful procedure.

Any enlargement of the thyroid gland should have immediate examination by a physician. He will determine definitely whether the enlargement is caused by lack of iodine, by over-secretion of the thyroid gland, by tumor or other abnormality; then he will prescribe the necessary medication. Never treat yourself for this disturbance, as you are likely to do more harm than good.

Many a person aware that he has goiter neglects it for fear of the knife. This is unwise, because most cases of goiter readily respond to proper and careful medication.

Bear in mind that a neglected goiter becomes more and more difficult to cure. Often operation, that could have been avoided by early and proper medical attention, is made necessary by reason of neglect.

Answers to Health Queries

D. F. N. Q.—How much should a girl weigh 14 years of age, 5 feet 2 inches tall? A girl 15 years of age, 5 feet 2 inches tall? A girl 15 years of age, 5 feet 1 inch tall?

A.—They should weigh respectively: 110 pounds, 112 pounds, 111 pounds, for their age and height as determined by examination of a large number of people.

Q.—Would bad teeth affect the nose? I have an itching feeling in the nose and a dull pain around the forehead.

A.—This is probably due to a sinus infection. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Miss J. C. Q.—What should a girl of 18, 5 feet 4 inches tall weigh? 2—What do you advise for acne?

A.—You should weigh about 123 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of your age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance. 2—Diet and elimination are important in the correction of this disorder. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Emotion and Discipline

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Many scoldings and much punishment is administered solely because parents are annoyed by a child's activities. Many "No's" are snapped out because Dad's eggs didn't set well at breakfast and he feels grouchy. Many a child is told to "Stop that immediately," because Mother finds the dress she bought at a bargain sale has faded and shrunk in the laundering process.

And how bewildered and resentful the child must very often feel at being told to stop some innocent activity which yesterday got by without even a comment! And he has a right to.

Bringing up a child requires a vast reserve of self-control, and a sturdy, long-suffering patience, but it is only fair to cultivate both. For, after all, it isn't the child's fault that he is here on earth, and he is entitled to the best we can give him. And that best surely includes consistency in dicipline.

Before you vent a hasty ultimatum on your child, pause and consider whether it is what he is doing that is at fault or whether there is some irritating emotion bottled up within you that is using the child's activity as a convenient outlet. Emotion and discipline have no place in the same breath.

A child senses immediately the justness of your correction or the injustice of it. He remembers, even if you don't, that yesterday he drummed on the piano for half an hour, while today you angrily tell him to stop it. After all, that proves that it isn't the noise he is making that is wrong, but the way it happens to affect you at the moment, that your are considering.

If you can learn to leave your own emotions out of the picture, you can be pretty sure that your discipline is fair and effective, but if you correct a child in anger, and merely to discharge that emotion, you will find an angry, resentful child. Punishment that is impersonal and logical is the only justifiable kind, and emotion plays no part in that. Your brain does the trick.

Household Hints

Lay a little stick across the top of the seldom-used teapot, just under the lid. This will permit fresh air to enter and prevent that musty odor.

Use low floral decorations on the dining table so they do not obstruct the vision of those seated across from each other. Also, they are not so readily overturned.

To make rancid butter sweet, cut as much butter as you want to use, and, before using it, put it to soak for a couple of hours, or even longer, in cold water to which a good pinch of carbonate of soda has been added.

NIAGARA FALLS Mighty Roar Broadcast ON THE AIR

U. S. Tribute Broadcast To Britain

A special trans-Atlantic broadcast marking the tenth anniversary of the founding of the British Broadcasting Corporation and presented under the direction of Paul Whiteman is scheduled to be short-waved to England as NBC's tribute to the British organization tonight at 6 o'clock. The program is heard throughout this country over an NBC-WEAF network, including WCAE, and continues for 30 minutes.

Miss Taylor

Featured artists, supported by Whiteman's orchestra and a chorus, are Irene Taylor, Jack Fulton, Ramona, Red Mackenzie and the Rhythm Boys. Included among the selections are a medley from "Flying Colors," "Where," "Till Tomorrow," "Street of Dreams" and "Let's Put Out the Lights."

The voice of Niagara Falls, broadcast twice last year during Edward d'Anna's band concerts, again is heard as a feature of his program over CBS-WJAS tonight at 9:30. The "voice" is picked up by two protected microphones set up on the rocks below.

That headlining six-point broadcast dedicating the new 50,000-watt transmitter of station WSM, Nashville, which was listed last Saturday night but due to last-minute program changes was not broadcast, is scheduled over NBC-WCAE tonight at 11:15. Originating in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver and Nashville, the varied presentation features an NBC announcers' frolic, Gene and Glenn, Jane Froman and her band, the Songfellows, Van and Don, the Commodores, Francis Craig's orchestra, James Melton and other air stars, and continues for an hour and 45 minutes.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

A big time is in store for the members of KDKA'S Kiddies Klub next Saturday morning, when a huge party, with prizes, entertainment 'n' everything will be staged in the Urban room of the Hotel William Penn by the Klub's sponsor, the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company. Heading the varied entertainment bill will be Uncle Kay-Dee (none other than Tony Wakeman) and Purvis Pullen, imitator of animal and bird calls and comparatively recent addition to KDKA's staff of artists.

Mr. Wakeman

Paul Whiteman's motion picture, "King of Jazz," is meeting with great popularity abroad, judging from the fan mail the maestro receives. Especially heavy is his mail from Germany, Holland and Africa.

Lanny Ross has been invited to be among the guests of honor at the annual "win-lose-or-draw" barn party of the Yale football team this year . . . Another prospective guest of honor is Jack Benny, to be tendered a banquet by his fellow Friars . . . On December 10 the same group will turn out to honor George Burns and Gracie Allen. Gracie will be the first woman ever accorded the tribute.

The Prince of Wales recently ordered, through a personal letter, all of Don Bestor's recent records. Don had the letter framed and hung in his office.

Coincidence? . . . There is a remarkable similarity in the careers of Ozzie Nelson and Scrappy Lambert . . . Both attended Rutgers University, both had stellar collegiate bands, both played important roles in the Glee Club, both decided to study law . . . They attended the same law school in Newark and both gave up their legal studies before their courses were completed, for radio.

Nat Shilkret stepped off the podium the other night to play with his orchestra during a "Music That Satisfies" broadcast . . . He played the celeste.

Nick Dawson and Elsie Hitz, co-stars in "The Magic Voice," never played together before the series' initial broadcast . . . Now they've discovered that they're neighbors in the rapidly growing radio colony in Jackson Heights—across the East River from Manhattan.

Elizabeth Barthell, the CBS songster, blossomed out as a radio actress when she bantered with Jay Flippen in a recent edition of Flippen-cies.

"Inter-Governmental Debts" is the subject of an address by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of the recently formed committee for the consideration of inter-governmental debts, when he appears as guest speaker during the Columbia Public Affairs Institute, on WJAS at 10:15 p. m.

Collectors . . . Harry Reser has preserved his canceled checks for the last decade and looks them over every once in awhile with a chuckle . . . Ray Perkins, Lanny Ross, Frank Munn and Sigmund Spaeth collect stamps. Perkins has the most extensive list, composed of more than 10,000 issues. Lanny has more than 5,000 and Spaeth gives most of his away to fellow collectors.

'American Weekly' Preview on WCAE

An advance peek at tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, which is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, and at the March of Events section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph is listed on WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest news over WCAE and WJAS today at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15 p. m. and over WCAE at 6:30 p. m. His 2:15 broadcast is canceled in order to accommodate the Yale-Harvard football broadcast listed at 1:15 on both stations.

BEARCATS GET FIFTH WIN IN ROW

LATROBE, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Flashing a strong aerial offensive in the closing minutes of play after three listless periods, St. Vincent's sturdy Bearcats registered their fifth victory of the season yesterday as they overwhelmed Morris Harvey, of West Virginia, 25 to 0.

The Bearcats counted their points on a line-smash over the goal by Johnson in the second period, two bullet-like passes flipped by Dashner in the last period, three successful kicks for points after touchdowns and two safeties. Both safeties, one coming in the second period and one in the last, resulted when the Bearcat forward wall smothered Wagner's kicks near the goal. The lineup:

Mt. Harvey	G	St. Vincent
Canterbury	L.E.	Bird
Harnes	L.T.	Hesch
Miller	L.G.	Blanko
Griffin	C.	Brosh

Scoring: St. Vincent—Touchdowns—Johnson, Paul, Flauto. Points after touchdown—Furin, Paul 2. Two safeties. Referee, Gannon; umpire, Gallagher; linesman, Shubek.

CENTRAL WINS GRID TITLE

A neat forward pass shortly before the final whistle, settled the City Catholic High School football championship yesterday at Frazier Field, giving Central Catholic High a 6-to-0 victory over St. Justin, of Mt. Washington.

The pass was aimed for Danny Huber, Central right end. He snatched it out of the air, and raced 10 yards for the score. The pass climaxed a drive from the center of the field.

Head injuries to Roney, Central right halfback forced him from the game at the end of the second period. The lineup:

McGrath	L.E.	Billy
Barr	L.T.	Garty
Tripoli	L.G.	Paul
Ellis	C.	Rooney
McQuade	R.G.	Butler

Central ..... 0 6 0 0—6
Touchdown—Huber.

PRIMO STOPS JOSE SANTA

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A quarter of ton of human beef collided last night in a unique spectacle of the ring, and Primo Carnera won himself the percheron title of the heavyweight division with a 6-round technical knockout over Jose Santa.

The mammoth Italian, contributing 270½ pounds to the entertainment, and the 247-pound Portuguese giving away weight, but not height, to his Garguantuan foe, stamped and thundered until they raised clouds of resin dust, and Santa finally retired from sheer exhaustion and punishment.

Thomas Flanagan Taken by Death

Thomas Flanagan, 34, well-known local baseball and basketball official, died last night in Mercy Hospital. Death was attributed to blood poisoning following the extraction of several teeth.

Flanagan was a former star catcher, playing for such well-known teams as the P. J. Sullivans, North Side Traders and the Phipps Club. He was treasurer of the Pittsburgh Umpires' Association and a member of the Pittsburgh Officials' Club. He resided at 917 Chartiers avenue, Elliott, and is survived by the widow and one son.

Plans Advanced For Warner Dinner

Plans for the testimonial dinner to be given Glenn S. (Pop) Warner next Friday night by the University of Pittsburgh Varsity Letter Club were given additional encouragement at a meeting of the committee in charge of the affair at the Schenley Hotel last night. The meeting followed a dinner at 6 o'clock.

A fitting gift for the veteran mentor, who brings his Stanford team here to play Pitt next week, was decided upon. It will be presented by Dr. John B. Sutherland, present Pitt coach and former pupil of Warner's here. Chairman Allan Collinwood reported a brisk advance sale of tickets.

Those in attendance at last night's meeting included Allan Collinwood, Dr. William McClelland, Sam Hunter, Norman McLeod, Andy Hastings, Red Byers, George McLaren, George I. Carson, Dr. P. V. McFarland, Dr. Hube Wagner, Sr., Cliff Carlson and Dr. George Kowallis.

Two Conference Tilts Tomorrow

Two games are scheduled in the West Penn Conference for tomorrow. At Olympia Park, McKeesport, the Olympics will hook up with the East Liberty Papales. The clubs fought to a scoreless tie earlier in the season.

At Greenlee Field, the J. P. Rooneys will play their last Conference game, meeting the Bellaire Eagles.

Joyce Begins to Get Tired Of Her Grandmother's Constant Guard

CHAPTER XXVII.

In her own room Joyce waited, swinging her foot against the window seat, the sun on her dark hair, her blue eyes alert.

"You've asked her?" Joyce questioned her mother.

"Yes—I—" She faltered, unwillingly to confess failure, along the path of least resistance, the coward's retreat. "I didn't understand. It's not a very nice household, dear, and there's plenty of time for house parties—don't be too disappointed."

Joyce nodded briefly, flung herself out of the room. Oh, these women! Grandmother—grandmother was part of her, of course, a background, a foundation, to life, but grandmother was old! Mother wasn't old. Joyce knew her age—37. Young enough to understand, young enough to be on youth's side. Perhaps mothers never were, no matter how young they were, perhaps you had to stand on your own feet, get along by yourself, each of you. Grandmother, mother, Joyce.

Elizabeth, alone, thought miserably . . . I've failed—the first time she's come to me, really. The trivial cause did not matter. She was in a mood to send her child into a dragon's den if the child demanded it as a proof of the mother's omnipotence.

A SECRET TASK

It was then, when Joyce was 16, that Elizabeth set out to win her secretly. Oh, very secretly indeed, for Louisa must not know.

The gifts that Fred Van Alstyne had brought to her in his man's hands were dust. She had refused them, they were gone from her. She was ceasing, imperceptibly, to mourn them, she was forgetting to remember. Love again she would and must—and the thing nearest to her. But love, and conquer in secret.

She began to go to Joyce's room, at night, in the early morning. She began to go for casual walks at about the time the child would be returning from school. Walking thus, seeing her at a distance, the waiting heart would quicken with a wistful tenderness. See, there she comes, light of foot, lovely as April—she's yours, Elizabeth!

Joyce was a little shy of her, at first. She could not forget her mother's inadequacy, her defections. But little by little ties began to weave between them. They liked the same books, the same sort of weather. They laughed at the same things. Elizabeth was wearing a rosier mask, she was prettier—girls are proud of a pretty mother. And she would window-shop with Joyce by the hour. "Look, isn't that a lamb of a dress? Mother, couldn't you almost die for that bracelet? What would you choose if I told you you could have anything at all in that heavenly window?"

An illness kept Louisa to her room for almost six weeks, an angry, grating rheumatic fever. She lay straightly in her bed and cast her mind back over the years, and ahead. What would happen to Joyce if she were to die?

LOUISA RESENTFUL

But she would not die. She made up her mind to that. She was an uncommonly strong woman. The heart attacks that had troubled her earlier in her life had mysteriously ceased; she had not had one since—how long was it?—since just before Lennox had died.

Died? He was not dead. He lived, in his child, for her.

When she was up and about again it did not take long for the undercurrents to reach her. "Mother, look at this! Mother, do you remember . . . ? Granny, when you were ill mother and I . . ."

Louisa studied Elizabeth furtively. She thought to surprise a look of triumph, thought to recognize malice, to be sensible of a deliberate revenge.

Did the little fool think that she could rob Louisa Sheldon twice? Not again, never again, for this time Louisa was armed.

In the fall——

"Grandmother, Billy Osborne's asked me to go up to Princeton for the game."

"How nice. You'll enjoy that. Who is taking you? Mrs. Osborne?"

"No, she's South. But I thought, perhaps, mother. She said she'd go. All the boys are crazy about her, granny. She's like a sister, and such fun."

Mrs. Sheldon made no comment at the moment. Later, she spoke to Elizabeth.

"You were thinking of going to Princeton with Joyce?"

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon has lorded it over her daughter-in-law, Elizabeth, even before the death of the latter's husband, Lennox. Pneumonia killed Lennox a few days after he was married. Louisa and Elizabeth went abroad, where a girl, Joyce, was born. They return to New York City. Ten years pass. Elizabeth never thought of remarriage until induced to attend social affairs with Fred Van Alstyne, college chum of her deceased husband. Fred proposes marriage, she accepts, and tells Mrs. Sheldon. The latter startles Elizabeth by asking her if she intends "telling" Fred all details of her romance with Lennox. Elizabeth writes Fred, breaking off their engagement. She persistently refuses to see him.

Now Go On

"Yes," defiantly. "She wants me—"

"I see—"

A long pause. Then, "Tell her I will go in your place."

"But—"

"I could scarcely be mistaken for her sister," Mrs. Sheldon acknowledged, with a smile that had been refrigerated for some time. "Elizabeth, if there's anything I find distasteful it is the sight of a middle-aged woman making a fool of herself over a lot of young boys."

Elizabeth went crimson. There were no words for what she felt. So she used none. She looked at the elder woman, in desperation and in scorn.

Mrs. Sheldon continued, evenly.

"It is the fashion nowadays. But perhaps I misjudge you. However, you seem to have—blossomed out, quite remarkably, while I was ill, Elizabeth."

Elizabeth turned on her; straightened her back against an invisible wall.

"You—you're trying to anger me," she accused, very low. "I won't insult myself or you by believing that you mean what you said. You've some other reason for not wanting me to go."

"And what is your reason for wanting to go?"

BOTH WANT GIRL

She could not answer and not betray herself.

"Joyce wants me."

"I've no doubt of it," Mrs. Sheldon mused; "the ideal chaperone from her immature standpoint. Perhaps, in other circumstances, she would not feel so sure of her judgment."

Words, words! Elizabeth moved her hands before her face, blindly, as if pushing away a cloud of them; they were gnats, stinging, swarming. She'd ask, she'd know, once and for all.

"You're trying to separate me from Joyce. You have always tried. You've almost succeeded. But not quite. She's mine, my own, my baby. All I have. You shan't take her. She loves me. I'm her mother."

"Quite so—"

Mrs. Sheldon rose from her chair. She came quite close. She said, spacing the words, "If I have tried to separate her from you, as you put it, it has been for her own good. If I have tried to forget that you are her mother, that from you she has a certain inheritance, it is because I have thought—and still think—that I can safeguard her against it. She is of my blood, too, remember. I will protect her while there is breath in my body—from you. And if I cannot—I'll put the means into her own hands—"

"You'd—tell—Joyce!"

The wall was dissolving. Elizabeth felt the world spin around her. She had one hand to her throat, her distended eyes were fixed upon that other impassive face.

"I shall tell her, if and when I think it necessary."

JOYCE REBELS

There was a long silence. It pressed down, down, like clods on a coffin. Somehow, she'd not thought of this, had not had this ultimate fear. Elizabeth whispered, "You hate me—that much?"

Could Louisa have answered—yes, that much! perhaps the pressure would have lifted. Things would have been clearer between them, out in the open, more honest. But Louisa was of her generation. She knew her own gospel by heart. She frowned, in sharp distaste. Christians do not hate erring people. But they abhor the error.

"Please do not grow hysterical," she advised astringently.

Joyce received the announcement that her grandmother would chaperon her to Princeton with rebellion and astonishment. She demanded explanations, chapter and verse, and Elizabeth had none to make. She was too weary, too beaten, to invent the lamest of excuses. Joyce spread-eagled across her small bed, swallowed hard with disappointment.

"We won't have a good time," she insisted, stubbornly, "and, besides," with reawakened hope, "Granny'll have another attack of rheumatism!"

The door closed softly. Joyce sat up and looked about the room, empty save for herself. Then she lay down again and anger dried her tears. Her mother, who had been developing into the most delightful of playmates, had vanished. A shut door, a room empty of her. Joyce had been very badly let down.

Her alert and maturing mind considered the situation, not alone the trivial significance of the Princeton game, but the importance of these two women in relation to herself. Grandmother was old and Joyce was young. Mother was nearer to Joyce in point of years, yet in outlook as far removed from the girl as grandmother herself. One might love grandmother for her mountainous strength, her dependability; one might love mother for her clouded beauty, her childishly wistful appeal, for the glimpse of the comrade one had had of her. But there it ended. Understanding, friendship—where were they? For a little time, it had seemed as though Elizabeth had achieved that most delicate of relationships, friendship of the blood, with her child. Or friendship despite kinship. Yet an episode so trivial as to become absurd in retrospect had shaken it to the new fragile foundations.

Joyce rose from her bed and ordered her hair before a mirror. Without words, without thought even, her way lay clear before her, the lonely, self-reliant way of each generation.

Grandmother went to the Princeton game, subdued the young men by her presence, was bored, uncomfortable and watchful. Then she went home and fulfilled Joyce's prophecy by a recurrence of her rheumatism. She was uncomplaining over it. The episode was closed.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Sweeping into Pittsburgh early this morning, out of the far north came Santa Claus and all of his assistants to remain until all the toys and presents are distributed on Christmas morning.

One of the first things Santa did after arriving was to pay a visit to all of the Warner Theaters where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic clubs hold regular weekly meetings.

There Santa met all the members and made a list of all the presents and toys that each member would like to find beside his of her Christmas tree on Christmas morning.

At the meeting Santa also told the members what he wanted them to do for him. The complete instructions will be found in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

OPEN WITH SONGS

Community singing by the members, featuring such songs as "A Shanty In Old Shanty Town," "Carolina Moon," "Say It Isn't So," "I Kiss Your Hand Madam," "Goodnight Sweetheart," "I Just Couldn't Say Good-bye" and "My Mom" opened the meeting of the Cameraphone Chapter today.

Peggy McDermott, that cute little miss from Vera Liebau's School of Dancing, entertained with an acrobatic dance. Following this a balloon contest for the girls was held in which 10 girls competed. The winner was Betty Herr. Anna Schmidt ran her a close second and was awarded the second prize.

The boys' balloon contest was somewhat more exciting as these youngsters spend some time before the contest starts exercise their lungs, and at the command to start they are all set. Blair Quigley proved to have the strongest pair of lungs and his balloon broke first, followed very quickly by James Ritchie's, who was awarded second prize.

CAMERAPHONE NEWS

Betty Niedhammer, "reporter" for the Cameraphone Chapter, interviewed the following youngsters, with this result:

Evelyn Ahlberg likes to read thrilling mystery stories and enjoys those "Sherlock Holmes" thrillers on the radio.

Evelyn's "pal," Caroline Deinert, also likes mystery and adventure stories, and dance music on the radio.

Ruth McNoughton's dad sings on the radio, and Ruth's greatest ambition is to follow in her dad's footsteps.

Mary Grace Dalessio's one great desire is to be a famous actress playing leads in musical comedy shows.

"Red" Sullivan, star little quarterback on the Duquesne football team, always has one rooter in the Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck seats when the team plays in Pittsburgh. He's Dick Rogan, "Red's" cousin, and a member of the Cameraphone Chapter.

Rita Giannuzzi, believe it or not, likes history best of all in school. Some day she hopes to visit all the countries she's now becoming acquainted with in school.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, and school you attend to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

South Hills—Gayle Platts.

Ambridge—George Campbell.

Manor—Harvey Meyers, Russell Homer, Griffith Howe, Charles Sapper.

Kenyon—Edward Scarft, Ethel Urbanek, Violet Spang.

Schenley—Manny Silvers, Albert Zronts, Edward Zronts.

Dissecting the Stadium Clients

We will look over today's college footballites and analyze their reflexes.

Cheerleader: Jumps up and down. Waves his elbows. Yells through megaphones. Turns somersaults. A victim of suppressed emotion.

Student: Fondness for masquerading in skins of pet raccoons which increases his bulk without improving the contents. Napoleonic complex.

Old grad: Conquerer returning to the scene of his cribbing, flunking and other boyhood triumphs. Carries huge thermos bottle on hip full of garage gin. Drinks every time something happens and manages to qualify at end of game for the junior snake dance. Just plain nuts.

Co-ed: Goes to game with student and leaves with old grad. Mother doesn't know she drinks and she doesn't know it herself after the fifth pint, lovely girl.

Coach: Gets paid for running up and down sidelines while his boys are getting measured for a tornado. He is an optimist who never catches up to next Saturday. A homicidal fixation by proxy.

Professor: Teaches at the college where the boys go to the stadium. Only reason he attends football game is because he's been lonely all week. Is educated and brilliant and gets enough salary to afford to drive up to the bread line in a scooter. Once had a future but now it's an arrested case.

Athlete: Slightly quarter-witted even if full-backed. With 21 other guys trying to massacre the man with the ball who hasn't got enough sense to fumble it. They cheer him when he is carried off on a stretcher and he thinks that plaster paris is a suburb of the famous French city. Has ancestral delusions about an old dame named alma mater. No cure.

Public: Goes out to see amateur athletes mangle each other. Doesn't care what happens to a boy so long as the kid doesn't get paid for it. Roots for the winning side at all times and will slap a stranger on his wife's back. Is harmless but annoying.

ARE PARENTS SIMPLE?

"Is it not unreasonable for parents to ask of children a virtue which they are unable to exemplify?" — Mrs. Agnes Lyne, writer on child culture.

For shame! For shame! The parent who would ask his child to grow
The virtues he does not possess and also fails to show
May have some good intentions but his mind is weak and low.

His mind is weak and low, my lads. His foggy intellect
Will never reach conclusions that are brilliant and correct,

The Public Approves

The Sale of Tickets for Sunday Symphony Concerts Harms Nobody—Brief Comment on Local News.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society has broken precedent by selling tickets for its concert at Syria Mosque tomorrow night, the first of the season. There may be those who will say that under a strict legalistic interpretation of the Blue Law of 1794 this action is illegal. But the society is fortified by a court decision and by the opinion of its counsel that it is not violating the law.

Even though a charge is made for admission, the Sunday symphony entertainment will harm nobody. On the contrary it will confer benefit. The Symphony Society deserves the thanks of Pittsburghers not only for giving the city good music and for upholding its prestige by maintaining a high-class orchestra bearing the city's name, but also for daring to challenge the tradition that Sunday shall be a day of gloom and idleness.

The Blue Law, a dead letter in Erie and several other places, and, with respect to Sunday golf and various other activities, a dead letter throughout the state, should be erased from the statute books. It is gratifying to have the assurance of the Democrats recently elected to the Legislature from Allegheny County that they will co-operate in the effort to repeal the law.

Some of the Democratic candidates who were re- ported as defeated in the recent election have good ground for suspicion that they were fraudulently "counted out." Attorney John M. Henry told the County Commissioners yesterday there was evidence that ballots had been tampered with in the Second Ward in order to credit to M. J. Muldowney, Republican candidate for Congress, votes that had been cast for Mrs. Anna E. Felix, his Democratic opponent.

In Philadelphia the House Committee on Cam- paign Expenditures has unearthed a vast amount of evidence as to irregularities. The complainants are for the most part supporters of President-elect Roosevelt; they say that he did not get a square deal because of the tactics pursued by the Republican machine. It is to be hoped the Philadelphia grand jury will investigate.

If there was cheating in Allegheny County, the courts, which have refused to treat election crookedness as a serious crime, are at least partly to blame. It is no wonder that the crooks would feel free to continue to cheat, in view of the leniency to the scores of election swindlers who were detected and convicted of fraud in the voting last year.

One hopeful development in this ugly business is that the Bar Association has taken cognizance of the public indignation against judges who went so far as to parole, before they had served a single day in prison, politicians convicted of conspiring to have hundreds of illegal votes cast. The outcome of the Bar Association's investigation will be awaited with interest.

The public also will await with interest the out- come of the Bar Association's campaign against ambulance chasers and other lawyers accused of unethical practices. The association has been working on this matter for many months, and from time to time has promised to bring disbarment proceedings against the accused. It is about time that these promises bore fruit.

The outlook is that the Welfare Fund will not attain its goal during the time limit set for its campaign. This is disappointing news, but not discouraging. There will be no alternative, of course, but to carry on beyond the date that had been fixed for the termination of the drive. Many persons undoubtedly could contribute more generously without making any sacrifice that they would feel.

The twenty-fourth National Conference on City Planning, held in Pittsburgh this week, was a success from the city's standpoint and also, we believe, from the standpoint of the visitors. The meetings were fairly well attended, and the subjects, of importance to every wide-awake community, were discussed authoritatively and entertainingly by experts.

Another notable gathering of the week was the sixteenth annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives at the Hotel Schenley Thursday night. The optimistic spirit shown by the speakers at these meetings is encouraging. Business is on the up-grade. Evidence of improvement is to be found on all sides.

Among the manufacturers whose business is good are those dealing in road materials. Highway construction has proceeded on a large scale this year. Sam Lewis, Secretary of Highways, states, for example, that more than one and one-quarter million feet of culvert pipe—a record quantity—was laid during 1932 to drain the state highways. Thirty-six million gallons of bituminous material were used in re-surfacing operations.

Not only manufactured products figure in the cheerful trade news. The Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that Pennsylvania apples are in good demand in Europe this autumn and that Jonathans grown in this state have brought a better price in foreign markets than any other variety of barreled apples from the Eastern states.

Another tribute to the fine quality of Pennsylvania farm products and the good demand for them may be found in the fact that the price index increased recently while the United States index decreased. Pennsylvania farm product prices now stand at 72 per cent of the pre-war level, while the United States price index stands at 56 per cent of the pre-war level.

The Sunday Sun-Telegraph presents tomorrow in the Gravure Section a picture for which many have been looking—a handsome faithful portrait of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, suitable for framing. It is a full-page reproduction of an excellent photograph, carefully chosen. There are scores of other worth-while pictures in the section, too.

A notable feature of the American Weekly, dis- tributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will be an article, illustrated in colors, about Venus, the brilliant mystery of the heavens. It is nearer the earth than Mars, yet we know less about it, on account of its fogs and clouds. A distinguished astronomer who has been studying Venus systematically for many years presents some curious facts.

Indecent Haste!

By Nelson Harding

With Uncle Sam still in the bath,
Scarce ready to begin
To change into his business suit,
Look who come barging in!

Why all this haste and hurry, boys,
This crashing of the gate?
Regain your Old World manners, boys,
And go outside and wait!

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Husbands, 1932 Model

Any man can tell you how to get rid of a cold or how to manage a woman; but, once either of them gets a good firm hold on him, he seems to forget all his theories for shaking them off.

In these days, the average married woman has to spend all of her time, trying to keep love from flying out of the window with one hand, while she helps to keep the wolf from the door with the other.

A grouch is just a man's inarticulate way of making his disapproval felt when he hasn't the nerve to express it in words.

In most things, a man may be more level-headed than a woman; but when it comes to picking out a wife, he seems to suffer from temporary mental derangement and complete paralysis of the cerebrum.

The only time when a married man feels very much married, these days, is when some woman, who has been trying to help him forget it, suddenly demands to be taken seriously.

Marrying a man to reform him always gives a woman a noble and exalted object in life—and a magnificent chance for self-sacrifice.

Before marriage, a man can usually manage to make the half-hour trip to a girl's house in less than 20 minutes; after marriage, his 20-minute walk from the office, somehow, takes him at least an hour.

The sort of people who blame all their heartaches and troubles on matrimony would probably blame the smashup on the telephone company for putting the pole in the way.

At 21, every man is absolutely confident that there are three things which will never happen to HIM—rheumatism, a bald head and matrimony!

* * *

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—With possible exception of Hollywood, no other city is half so celebrity-conscious as this. In a theater party recently, I was seated next to Norma Shearer of the films. Due to a late dinner, the party arrived after the house was darkened.

As Miss Shearer took her seat, an electrical current of recognition swept the theater, like a galloping wind. The entire audience knotted with a twitch. Everywhere, even leaning far over the balcony, were peering eyes. So diverting was the concentration, a player fumbled his lines.

When the curtain fell, the lower floor held back while upper tiers debouched to group around the entrance. In the aisle, departing, a sleekly coiffed lady, in unmistakeable South American accents, held forth a program and pencil with: "May I be honored with your autograph."

A gracious assent swooped a flood of signature-hunters. Outside under the marquee, all traffic paused. Even taxis stopped mid-stream to watch. A breathless young girl gasps: "Oooh, isn't she lovely!" The sidewalk milling reached almost panic proportions.

One audacious fellow even opened the star's limousine door to snatch a flowery memento from a silver bracket. To all, Miss Shearer seemed to symbolize That Which Might Have Been or That Which May Be. For a flitting second, she represented the world's ideal—Happiness!

When Miss Shearer, a starry-eyed schoolgirl out of Canada, chaperoned by her mother, knocked at Hollywood studios, she was withered daily with a pyramid of aloofness. Her experience? Well, she had posed for tooth-paste ads! But out of the waves of superiority was one warming remembrance. An ascetic young executive with a sad smile was slightly encouraging. Outside, her mother in sudden exuberance exclaimed: "Wouldn't it be funny if you married him?" The young man was Irving Thalberg.

Even the depression has not obliterated entirely those debonaire figures, peculiar to Broadway, who "toil not, neither do they spin." They are not gigolos. Indeed, they are known as a man's man. They dress as though just turned out by an efficient valet. Not foppishly, but spruce. They live at best hotels, travel and are well supplied with funds.

Time frescoes queer phenomena. I passed the old Broadway Central, on lower Broadway, late the other night. A sleepy porter, his mop leaning against an office pillar, was the only person in sight. Its stairway, famous for the Fiske-Stokes murder, was clothed in gloom. It was difficult to imagine that this once was the high spot of New York, encompassing all the wit and elegance of that time. It was the locale for novelists who wanted to write of love, laughter, music, the dartle of white shoulders, the flutter of cambric handkerchiefs and eyes above the fan!

An occasional first-nighter is the immaculate, and now white-haired, James Forbes, who gave to Broadway, among other of those fine plays so swiftly stacked with revelatory lines, "The Chorus Lady" and "The Traveling Salesman." He is one of the few playwrights to salt middle years with a fixed income by shrewd investing. Now and then, he dabbles in the movies as casting director, but much of the time he enjoys an earned leisure.

In negotiating the avenue this afternoon, a crossing cop—imagine a McIntyre talking to a policeman!—barked: "You got peepers, ain't you?" I merely indulged a haughty hoist of my brows and waited. So, he continued: "Well, you're going against the lights. Get t'll back on that curb!" And when the lights changed, he grumbled in mocking sniff: "Now cross, city chap!" I can't fool anybody.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You want a grand life.

You want a lot of fun and excitement.

You want power and popularity.

And, deep down, you want an abiding sense of pride and peace.

All your life you've been wanting these things; trying to find them. Yet you've always failed, haven't you? Always you've been secretly dissatisfied, bored and bewildered.

Yet other people find life good. Why can't you? Why are the cards stacked against you? Why doesn't your chance come?

Sometimes you were almost sure that it had come. There was that time when you had such a fat job—better wages than you ever had before or since. That was a great time. You were able to buy things you had been wanting for years. Swell clothes. A little car. You were able to go places and do things.

Yes, for a little while you did the things that you had always wanted to do. And you had always been sure that if you could do those things, buy those things, you would be perfectly happy.

But were you? No, you weren't!

So you started wanting more things, different things, better things. For you still were sure of that, if you had or did enough things, you'd be happy and important.

Yet that grand life you want seems as far away as ever, doesn't it? And you can't understand.

You wish someone would tell you why.

That's easy. All your life you've been seeking life OUTSIDE yourself; trying to BUY life; trying to BUY happiness, and fun, and power, and pride, and peace.

But life doesn't lie outside you. LIFE IS INSIDE YOU.

You don't live in things or places. You live in your own feeling about those things or places.

Stop and think! Look at that ring on your hand. You like that ring. You want it for a long time. You say that ring gives you pleasure. But does it?

A sparkling blue stone, a fragment of gold—what is there in them to give you pleasure? What mysterious power have they to excite your imagination, to warm your pride, to satisfy your love of beauty?

You know the answer, as well as I. They haven't any mysterious power. They, in themselves, give you no pleasure. It is YOUR FEELING ABOUT THEM that gives you pleasure.

If the ring had power in itself, it would affect every man in the same way. But it hasn't. Only the man's own emotions have power over the man.

There, in that simple story of the ring, lies the secret of life. Things mean nothing to us unless we give them a meaning. A sparkling blue stone arouses delight in you because it answers a need in you which can be filled by sparkling blue stones.

Yet another person might experience a deeper, lovelier ecstacy at the sight of a dew-spangled blade of grass, or structural steel flinging a delicate web against a sunset sky. It isn't the Thing that matters. It's your feelings about the Thing.

LIFE ISN'T WHAT WE HAVE, NOR IS IT WHAT HAPPENS TO US. IT'S OUR OWN REACTION TO OUR POSSESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE.

LIFE IS AN INSIDE JOB—AND EVERY MAN MUST DO THAT JOB FOR HIMSELF, AND IN HIMSELF.

Look back at the years you have lived. Look back at the things that you've had. You haven't found happiness in them. But another man or woman, living exactly the same amount of time, going through the same experiences, possessing the same things, would have found pleasure, and power, and pride, and peace.

They would have FELT these reactions, because they would have SUPPLIED these reactions. They would have taken the raw material of life and turned it into beauty, where you, by your discontent, have turned it into rubbish.

Stop waiting for happiness to happen OUTSIDE you. Begin to make it happen INSIDE you. Stop watching for adventures to come along and begin to make adventures of the things that DO come along.

LIFE IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT. LIFE IS AS YOU TAKE IT.

Text For Today Saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes.—Luke, xix:42.

Be Thankful for Little Things

Happy He Whose Heart Is Filled with Gratitude.

Copyright, 1932, New York Evening Journal, Inc. Registered U. S. Patent Office.

"LET ME BE THANKFUL FOR LITTLE THINGS."

Thanksgiving will soon be here, and for many in America this picture and the verses published below answer the question, "Why should I be thankful?"

Not the great things, adventures, excitement, but the lesser things, make up life's happiness. It is a privilege to reprint as we do today this picture by Arthur E. Becher and the verses by Edna Jaques, by permission of Good Housekeeping, which, above all other publications, is the magazine of the American home and the American mother.

Thankful for What?

By Edna Jaques.
Illustration by Arthur E. Becher.

Not for the mighty world,
O Lord, tonight,
Nations and kingdoms in their fearful might—
Let me be glad the kettle gently sings,
Let me be thankful just for little things.

Thankful for simple food and supper spread,
Thankful for shelter and a warm, clean bed,
For little joyful feet that gladly run
To welcome me when all my work is done.

Thankful for friends who share my woe or mirth,
Glad for the warm, sweet fragrance of the earth,
For golden pools of sunshine
on the floor,
For love that sheds its peace about my door.

For little friendly days that slip away,
With only meals and bed and work and play,
A rocking-chair and kindly firelight—
For little things let me be glad tonight.

Life would be dreary were it not for happiness and gratitude based on "the little things" in life, the "love that sheds its peace about my door," the "sweet fragrance of the earth," and above all, in the hearts of good women, the "little joyful feet that gladly run to welcome me, when all my work is done."

The salvation of this world, the hope of a better future, is not in the so-called "great men," politicians, soldiers, kings of industry or money.

The hope of the human race is in THE MOTHERS, that are content and grateful with "little things," content to find happiness in the joy and health of their children, in devotion to the home and its care.

Good Housekeeping renders public service sending this beautiful picture and these verses into two millions of American homes.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You had a hard struggle when you were in college and you have resolved that your boy or your girl will not have a similar experience if you can help it.

Aren't you, for this reason, a little too liberal with spending money?

Being too liberal encourages expensive habits.

In your home and with yourself you are penurious, and careful, in order that the children away may have a good time and be free from the worry or the embarrassment which a shortage of money might cause.

You think it is your duty to give them the money necessary to "hold up their end" with the others whose parents are far more able to provide liberally.

If all parents were sensible in this matter, college expenses would decrease greatly.

The young people would have some necessary lessons in thrift which they must learn sometime. The longer they put off that time the harder it will be to accustom themselves to financial curtailment.

Your too-liberal plan is not a good one.

Perhaps it is a good thing that not so many parents can indulge their sons and daughters in luxurious living at college as formerly.

Isn't It So?

He that fears leaves must not go into the woods.

People who live in glass houses can sympathize with goldfish.

Most men think they look distinguished after they reach the age of 40.

The man who is looking for something for nothing might go to a judge and get 10 or 20 years.
